CHICAGO.

MASSACHUSETTS.

The telegraphic announcement that the delegates at large from Massachusetts to the Charleston Convention are in favor of Douglas seems to have been entirely gratuitous. An attempt was made in the Worcester Convention to recommend Douglas for the Presidency in an elaborate resolution, but it was voted down, as the Boston Journal informs us, "by ten to one." Another resolution, approving of the Territorial policy of Mr. Douglas, "and in favor of a protective tariff," was voted down by four to one. A third resolution, applauding the squatter sovereign of Illinois as an "able and fearless advocate," etc., was sent to the committee on resolutions, where it was quietly extinguished. The delegates to the Charleston Convention are Isaac Davis, of Worcester, Caleb Cushing, of Newburyport, James Whitney, of Springfield, and Oliver Stevens, of Boston. Davis and Cushing are notorious political sharpers, who like nothing so well as a trade, in which they are the things purchased. Whitney is a Buchanan officeholder, being no less than the Superintendent of the Springfield Armory. The Springfield Republican, reporting the proceedings of the Democratic County Convention in that city a few days ago, stated that the squatter sovereigns were completely routed, and that the delegates, of whom Whitney was the chief, were all friends of the present Administration and hostile to Douglas.

The following is the State ticket nominated by the faithful and persevering few who call themselves the Massachusetts Democracy:

For Governor—Gen. B. F. Butler, of Lowell.
Lieut. Governor—S. C. Bemis, of Springfield.
Secretary of State—S. W. Bowerman, of Adams.
Treasurer—George Dennett, of Boston.
Auditor—Jas. E. Eastubrook, of Worcester.
Attorney-General—D. H. Mason, of Newton.

There can be no doubt that the party was fully represented at Worcester, the number of delegates on hand being over fourteen hundred.

C. Washburne, of La Crosse; Hon. Luther Hanchett, of Portage, and other prominent Republican speakers are also expected to address the people at various points in the State during the canvass. A list of their appointments will be announced as soon as it can be arranged.

☞ Douglas made a speech at Wooster, Ohio, on Friday last, and among other things said, "that Illinois stands the only Northern State that has never faltered" in sustaining the Democratic party.

The Judge's memory is a little faulty. In 1854 Illinois elected a Republican Legislature, which turned Shields out and put Trumbull in the Senate. Misther Shields has a vivid recollection that he heard "something drop" when Illinois faltered.

Two years later, in 1856, a straight Republican ticket was elected by six to seven thousand majority; and two years subsequently, when Douglas himself was a candidate, he and his party were beaten four thousand and upwards on the popular vote. In fact the State of Illinois has "faltered" ever since he invented the Squatter Sovereignty dogma; and it is passing strange that he has never observed it.

☞ The Republicans of La Salle County have nominated S. R. Lewis for County Treasurer, Wells Waite for School Commissioner, and W. F. Whitmore for County Surveyor.

The Great Fire.

When among the attractions of the Great Fair week was named the prominant feature of a grand trial of Steam Engines, it was not contemplated nor anticipated how notable that trial would become in the eyes of citizens and our many guests, when it should take the form of an actual night-long contest between the devouring element on the one hand and the new fire-extinguishing agent, Steam, on the other.

We believe it was fully demonstrated that only iron muscles, steam-impelled, could have fought the flames thus long. In its palmiest days our Fire Department, with its hand machines, would have seen its best men hors da combat with fatigue, and worn out a long succession of raw recruits from the crowd during such a night as that. Another thing was demonstrated, that our City Fathers must act, and act promptly, in the matter of securing more steam machines. It should not have been thus long delayed, and is inexcusable save on the real ground that the whole subject of Steam Machines is in a transitory state, and it has been really a matter of doubt which machines are the best. It will not do, however, to imitate the poor wretch who went naked in mid-winter with a roll of broadcloth under his arm, unable to decide upon what fathion his garments should be made.

We must have four new steam fire engines of light build, and drawn by two horses. We need them at once. Had they been here on Thursday night they would have rendered immense service, and paid for themselves ten.fold on the spot.

We present elsewhere a communication on the subject of the losses at the late fire, as coming from a source worthy of confidence. On such occasions over estimates in aggregate, grow out of the overstatement by individuals of their own losses.

One point in the incidents of the Great Fire omitted at the time, through pressure of other matters, deserves to be mentioned not only to do justice to the daring exertions of a well known citizen, but to promulgate as widely as possible, for profit on some similar occasion the method successfully adopted by him to check the progress of the fire through lumber piles.

It is well nigh next to impossible to extinguish a pile of pine lumber after it has become ignited. The interstices traversing the entire bulk horizontically and vertically, serve as so many flues to conduct the heat and flame to every part of the pile. When a fire is raging through a lumber yard these loose timber piles are as easily ignited as they are hard to be extinguished.

On Thursday night at the Great Fire, G. H. Hazleton, Esq., a merchant of this city and President of the Western World Insurance company, observing the imminent peril of the flames crossing Carroll street advised the owners and employees at the Oconto Lumber Yard, whose stock was piled along the south front of the block, (who were attempting to run off as much of the lumber as possible, looking upon that as the only method of saving it,) to adopt a mode of protecting the lumber piles where they were. Though his suggestions were not at first received with much favor, Mr. Hazelton persisted, sent off his own clerk after a hammer and nails, and then with such help as he could get, commenced nailing long boards vertically against the end of the lumber piles. This was done along the entire front of the lumber yard and the smooth, close board surface thus exposed, was easily kept wet by streams from the fire engines, and the northward progress of the conflagration checked as it could have been seemingly, by no other human means.

Mr. Hazelton deserves much credit for his promptness and zeal, and the plan adopted by him, from its successful working on that occasion deserves to be generally known for use on similar exigencies. Might it not be well for lumber dealers to remember in case of fire these screens so formed may easily be kept wet, and may thus save thousands of dollars.

The Fawkes' Steam Plow: Grand Gold Medal of Honor Awarded by the Committee of the United States Fair.

The committee appointed by the United States Agricultural Society, on the award offered for the Steam Plow, have presented an elaborate report in which they award the Grand Gold Medal to the "Lancaster," the Steam Plow invented and on exhibition by J. W. Fawkes. The machines on exhibition at the National Fair were presented

By John Deere, of Moline, Ill., a Double Michigan Plow.

By John Van Doran & Co., of Chicago, substitute for the plow.

By B. F. Field, Milwaukee, Wisconsin, a substitute for the plow.

By Joseph W. Fawkes, Lancaster, Pa., steam plow.

By James Waters, Detroit, Michigan, steam plow.

These were all offered under the following:

Class 94.—A substitute for the Plow.—For that machine which shall supercede the Plow, as now used, and accomplish the most thorough disinterogation of the soil, with the greatest economy of labor, power, time, and money, the Grand Gold Medal of Honor.

We have not the space for the full review by the committee of the merits and demerits of these machines. All of them have been fully described in our columns.

No definite opinion is passed upon the principle of the Doren & Glover Machine for the reason that obvious and numerous defects in the commonest details of its manufacture prevented its being tested at all. Its inventors are poor, and their means forbade them doing justice to their bantling. For instance, the boiler was so poorly made that it leaked and became worthless at 11 lbs. The two first named machines were both ruled out as below the standard for competition. This narrowed the contest down to the Waters and Fawkes machines. Our own special reporter, "Rural," was present at the trial of these machines and his full and impartial notes have been given and must answer in place of presenting here the description of these Steam Plows, in the Report. It will be remembered that the Waters Plow broke down. The committee give the following as the cause of the accident. Thence onward we follow the report.

Mr. Waters while awaiting orders to move, got his steam up to 180 pounds in a brief time, a pressure unsafe, particularly in the hands of an inexperienced person. On starting to work, the gauge showed a pressure of 140 pounds; under which, after suitably adjusting the depth of his two gangs of plows by means of the screws prepared for that purpose, he moved forward a distance of three hundred feet in two minutes; when, on turning his first curve the castor wheel on the front of his second plow frame, by reason of a previous bending of its shaft, turned sidewise and broke in pieces, letting two or three of the plows in the gang into the ground to great depth, one of them was snapped off, and further work rendered impracticable. From the commencement of the work until the unfortunate accident occurred was but two minutes. The furrow turned by the thirteen plows was 19 feet in width, and the distance traveled being 300 feet, there was only plowed 5700 square feet or something more than an eighth of an acre of land—certainly not enough to give a far idea of the possible performance of the machine. The accident would not have occurred if an experienced hand had been placed to manage each gang of plows, nor perhaps if the inventor had had the benefit of any reasonable experience with plowing machinery, and it is a source of much regret that the really good qualities of a powerful traction engine should not have been brought out, merely from careless management on this important occasion.

Waters' engine has undoubtedly great power, but has some objectionable features as well. There being four cylinders, the machinery is made more complicated and by so much, the less easy of management by farmers. The four cylinders are necessary to a machine like this which has two large traveling wheels, to keep each of which in motion at will, a pair of cylinders must be used, for without them it would not be possible to get the wheels off centres under some circumstances. The revolutions of the engine being 24 to each one of the drivers, speed of locomotion is not obtained, commensurate with the speed of the engine. The great length of the train of engine, tender and plows make it unwieldy to handle and prevents trimming up corners of lots, and banks of sloughs and basins where much waste of land would be caused. It also is asserted by the inventor that his field is not back furrowed and finished up, but a strip of fifty feet is left in the middle to be finished by horse power. The tractive power of the engine when at work seemed ample, but we are not prepared to say that such would be the case throughout a day's work, but suppose it would. The two pairs of cylinders being independent of each other, a serious obstruction to one driver might, and did, cause it to slip, while the other held its tractive power; thus there would be a tendency to throwing out of line. The internal gears of the drivers being quite exposed to dust and sand, the wear would be rapid. The raising and lowering of the gangs of plows by a quick screw proved itself bad, for when the points ran down deep, the downward pulling weight caused the screw to rapidly run up, and the plows were buried almost to the beams.

Of course further experiment with Mr. Waters' machine being impossible, the entire attention of the committee was given to the Fawkes plow. The work done by this latter machine throughout was excellent, the furroughs being evenly laid, and the turf completely buried, even in a stretch of land broken up into tussocks, with flags and other aquatic plants growing upon and around them. The soil was a black mold, so sandy in parts that a good clod could not be picked up; in others with much gravel intermixed with the mold; and in others a fine black vegetable mold, such as is common all over the "black prairie." Your committee think that in building another engine, Mr. Fawkes will add extra flues to keep an extra supply of steam for emergencies, perhaps enlarge the diameter of his smoke stack, or make other proportional changes which will increase the efficiency of his engine without at all affecting his principle.

The plows as now set in gangs, are liable to choke in some kinds of ground, from their being too nearly in a row latterally, whereas if set more obliquely on the frame, each furrow would be turned over before the one following would commence.

But, while your committee are by no means prepared to certify that Mr. Fawkes' plowing machine has reached the degree of perfection only to be had after much practical working on a farm, they do not regard its several weak points as above noticed, as invalidating its claims to public favor, for enough good work was done in the two miles of furrow it run on Friday, to prove it to have great merit. It plowed for us at the rate of an acre in 17 minutes, or 3½ acres per hour, including turns.

At the Royal Agricultural Society of England's show this year, there were exhibited six steam plows and cultivators in actual work. Of these the best was that of John Fowler, Jr., of London, whose engine is stationed at one side of a field, a self-moving drum at the other, and a wire cable, which winds and unwinds on the above drum, and another one beneath the engine itself, draws a double gang of plows, one-half set to plow in one direction, the other in the contrary one. With this apparatus, taking four furrows nine inches by six, and employing a power equal to ten horses, two acres sixteen perches only of ground were broken up per hour.

To this machine was awarded the Royal Society's Grand Prize of £500 last year at Chester, and the new prize of £50 this year at Warwick; and your committee are of opinion that if these awards were worthily made, the machine of Fawkes is eminently worthy of commendation and support at their hands. They, therefore, take pleasure in reporting to the Honorable Executive Committee, that they unanimously award the Grand Gold Medal of Honor, of the United States Agricultural Society, to Joseph W. Fawkes, of Christiana, Lancaster county, Pa., for his steam plow.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

THE CITY.

Larceny of a Coat.—John Field, alias Wm. Cortle, was arrested on the Fair Ground on Sunday, and held to bail in $500 in yesterday's Police Court for stealing a coat.

☞ Mr. Head, of Chicago, is of the twenty-two American cricketers who are selected to meet the eleven English players in the great match to come off, and for which the Britishers left the shores of Albion on the 7th inst.

Inquest.—An inquest was held yesterday on the body of Lewis Fernley, son of Mr. G. Morley, accidentally killed by being run over by an ice-wagon, as narrated in yesterday's issue. The inquest resulted in fully acquitting the driver of all blame.

Serious Accident.—A young man named Deere was run over by the cars at the St. Louis depot on Van Buren street on Saturday afternoon last, and his head badly cut, and arm broken. He was taken to the city hospital where he is under Dr. Schloetzer's care.

Taken Home.—The remains of the ill-fated John Dickinson of Mendota, who expired at the Adams House on Sunday from the effects of being run over by a car at the Central Depot the night previous, were taken home to his place of residence yesterday.

"Speculation."—This new local comedy by a brother of the editorial fraternity in this city, Matteson of the Times, was brought out at McVicker's Theatre last evening. We trust for profits all round it is not misnamed. It is well spoken of by those who heard it last evening.

☞ Over 1,200 persons slept in the Tremont House, Wednesday night, and 1,400 breakfasted there Thursday morning. The other first class Houses were nearly as well patronized as the Tremont. The Briggs House slept about 1,000 Wednesday night; and the Richmond was full from cellar to attic.

Meteorological and Marine.—A waring, blustering old fellow, prone to moisten his own clay and everybody else's, came into these parts yesterday with every manifestation of impatience at coming too late for the Fair. He registered his name with everybody as "The Equinoctial."

Cosmopolitan Bazaar.—This is the last night of the Cosmopolitan Bazaar. All the attractions which have been produced during the past week will be combined in this last evening. The noble charity for which this affair has been held, aside from the real attractions which it has offered, should induce a large attendance and a liberal contribution to its treasury.

The Courts.—Judge McLean of the United States Supreme Court, opened a term in the U. S. Court room in this city yesterday.

In the Circuit Court of Cook County yesterday nothing was done beyond the hearing of motions.

The Recorder's Court comes in session on the first Monday in October.

Masonic Banquet.—At the Tremont House on Friday evening last some 200 of the Masonic fraternity sat down to a grand banquet which was served up in the sumptuous style characteristic of that house. The speaking was excellent and included addresses from the Honorable Albert Pike, Hon. Mr. Hilliard, Hon. Mr. Hubbard, and Hon. Mr. Mackey.

Fisher, the Wife Murderer.—The Supreme Court, now in session at Ottawa, have granted the application for a supersedeas, staying the execution of Wesley B. Fisher, the wife-murderer of Ottawa, who had been sentenced to be hanged on Wednesday last. A full hearing is to be had at the regular term of the Supreme Court, in April next, on the motion to remand the case for a new trial.

Unfortunate.—The Messrs. Miller, an extensive jewelry house on the corner of Clark and Lake street, were visitors to the Fair, and our readers know, contributors to its attractions with a superbly filled show case. On Saturday night, while they were removing their valuables to their own premises, some adroit scamp who had been watching this literally golden opportunity, stole from the express wagon a small box containing jewels valued at $3,000. No clue to the thief as yet.

Credit due.—Much credit is due to the crowds at the United States Fair for being by far the most orderly gathering of its size that we can remember. During the week that saw from fifty to sixty thousand sight seekers busy at the Fair, not one drunken man disturbed the general enjoyment, nor an act of rowdyism on any marked scale caused annoyance to the throngs there gathered. But there is also much to be said in praise of our Chicago officers and detectives, and their brethren from abroad, whose presence and vigilance held scoundrelism in check.

The Silver Cup and Medal Grindstone.—The testing of the Grindstones, at the National Fair, took place before a regular Committee of farmers, and a special Committee of mechanics, and resulted in an award of the cup and medal to the Lake Huron Stone, entered by J. B. Johnson, of Cleveland, Ohio. The Berea and Marietta stones, submitted from Ohio, were good samples of their kind, and worthy of their commendation, but the Lake Huron bore away the palm. The Huron quarries, we learn, are on Lake Huron in the State of Michigan, and their product, is growing in favor among farmers all over the country. Thomas Hale, Esq., is the Chicago agent for these quarries.

Young Men's Christian Association.—The Young Men's Christian Association whose free Reading Room is open every day in the Methodist Church Block, have lately received an addition to the Library. They are gathering by donation, from publishers in New York and Philadelphia. The Association in aid of their efforts to establish a free library of standard religious works,—a great desideratum in this city,—are glad to acknowledge donations from abroad, but they remember that thers are many in this city—the legitimate field of their operations—who by contribution to this object, would themselves, reap the reward, by helping to create a demand for religious reading, which they could then supply. Their Library still has empty shelves, and we hope that the Booksellers will take the hint, and see that they are filled up.

Extensive Business in Counterfeiting.—A man named William Mitchell, residing in the West Division, was arrested on Sunday, with Susan, his wife, and Mrs. Melinda Nichols, her mother, charged with having been in the business of circulating and putting into circulation a goodly amount of altered $5 bills, purporting to be on the Grayville Bank of Ill., but in reality altered from a defunct institution in Michigan or Indiana, authorities differing on that point.

The two women, by Mitchell's instruction, passed a score of these flimsies on various parties, which brought up quite a little cloud of witnesses against them in the examination before Justice Milliken. In addition to these proofs of their industry, a "few more of the same sort" were found in Williams' bed over $1,000 in the same trash. He was committed in default of $5,000 bail. The women were held in $500 each.

How People were Entertained.—It is estimated that not less than 20,000 visitors to the United States Fair were entertained in the houses of private citizens, free of expense. Almost every man's latch-string was hung out, and multitudes of strangers were thus hospitably housed and fed. It was by this means that the hotels and boarding houses were able to receive and sleep all who applied for lodgings. And this characteristic of Chicago people is one of the reasons why such enormous masses of people can be induced to visit this city on great public occasions.

Our readers will better understand how such a multitude are fed, by the statement that this small army at the Tremont House, for the period of ten days from Saturday, Sept. 10th, made way with "fodder" as follows: Beef 3560 lbs; Butter, 1,400 lbs.; Chickens, number 1,260; Coffee, 500 lbs.; Eggs, 1,325 doz.; Flour, 26 bbls.; Milk, 922 gallons; Mutton, 940 lbs; Potatoes, 76 bu.; Sugar, 1,425 lbs. Fair eating and drinking for Fair week.

Violent Gale.

What will pass for the Equinoctial Storm began this week with much violence, succeeding moderate showers of Sunday afternoon and evening and the earlier part of yesterday. Towards night the wind veered to the northward, and came down the lake in a furious gale with a driving rain. Outside the weather must have been very severe to the shipping exposed. One or two vessels were in the offing at nightfall, but the sea was too rough for the tugs to bring them in.

The wind down the lake set back the water into the river, raising it upwards of two feet, flooding the sewers and divers basements about town, not proof to such invasions of the watery deities.

The seas along the breakwater were exceedingly ugly. But for the vigilance of the railroad company's employees a serious accident might have been the result last night. The night train on the Michigan Central left on time with over eight hundred passengers, and had proceeded as far south as the Round House, below Twelfth street, when it was discovered that the waves had torn away a portion of the pier and track, opening an ugly chasm for an accident, only averted by this vigilance. The train returned to the city and will not leave until this morning as the regular morning express.

We have been exceedingly favored in weather for months past, and the anticipated change has only come at the end of Fair Week, a period when it might have disastrously interfered with the Great Exhibition. Last night was a sample of another class in the list meteorological, and the gale tested severely the strength of things terrene and marine. Awnings, loose shutters, and buildings in process of erection, added to drowned basements, were the only land disasters reported. In the narrow sea-room of the lakes, however, such a gale could but result in accidents more serious.

Saving Property at Fires.

Many strangers who witnessed the great fire of last week, wondered why the crowds of people did not save half the lumber that was consumed, by taking hold and carrying it out of danger. There were enough spectators they said, to have moved millions of feet to a place of safety in an hour's active work. This is what would have been done, they stated, in any of the towns in the country, which we presume is true. But these people from the rural districts are not acquainted with the fashions that prevail in large cities, where the mob attend fires to stare or steal; to play rowdy and get drunk if opportunity offers. If any of them are asked to help save property they either shirk off or charge more for their services than all the property they save is worth. We saw some instances of this during the late fire. One man asked some Irish laborers to help him throw into the street a lot of oak staves. A few took hold and threw perhaps fifty dollars' worth into the street for him. Since then more than five hundred Irishmen have claimed pay for working for him—each declaring that he labored a certain number of hours, and demanding various sums from 5 cents up to $5. When we saw him on Saturday afternoon, he had paid out to the lying rascals over $150, and was surrounded by a ravenous mob clamoring for more money. Another man who had a few boards removed said that each one had cost him over a dollar, and that he expected to be besieged for a month to come. A third man had got his own regular laborers to place some boards against certain piles of lumber. None but these and a few personal friends assisted him, and yet all day Friday and Saturday his office was besieged by a crowd of Corkonians, swearing that they worked all night for him, and demanding compensation.

A man dare not ask the crowd to help him save property at a fire in Chicago. It is far cheaper to let it burn, as the mob will charge him more to rescue than it is worth. Men whose property is burning up never dare ask any one but their friends and personal acquaintances to assist them in the hour of need. We have said nothing of the thievish propensities of the same rabble at fires, as notorious in the country as well as in the city.

Fanning Mills.

Chicago, Sept. 17, 1859.

Editors Press and Tribune:

Dear Sirs: The Committee appointed by the Board of Trade, to decide on the merits of the best Fanning Mill that might be exhibited at the United States Fair for the specific purpose of separating oats from wheat, desire, through you, to say to all interested that, having failed to report themselves in time, they were very properly superseded by another committee; but that, for their own satisfaction, they made a hasty examination of the various mills exhibited, and were unanimous in the opinion that it required more time and a better opportunity to test the machines than could be obtained on the Fair Grounds. The Committee consider the object to be obtained one of great importance; and, after consulting with most of the proprietors of mills, stating clearly what the object of the Board was in offering a premium, and what we desire to have their mills accomplish, came to the conclusion to grant another trial, and make a more thorough examination. In deciding on this course, we say to all exhibitors, we are not authorized to offer any premiums, but will provide a suitable place for trial, and grant a certificate to the successful mill. We have appointed Thursday, the 13th of October next, as the day for trial, a more specific notice of which will be given in the daily papers.

Yours truly,

Hand Engine No. 13.

Editors Press and Tribune:

In your account of the late fire, headed "A Battle with the Flames," speaking of the almost superhuman exertions of the Department in their successful endeavors in preventing the flames from crossing Carroll street, and taking hold of the high piles of lumber bordering on that street, you award all the laurels to the steamers Long John and the Atlantic, when the facts are that the hand engine No. 13 was the second if not the first machine that was ordered to that position, and she battled the flames there for hours, and until all farther danger was past; it was 13 that stood between the flames at the spot where the lumber caught fire some six or eight times, and was as often extinguished by her brave boys.

The steamers there did nobly, and will deserve all the praise you bestow, and Thirteen's boys are not of those who so foolishly sneer at the Steam Department, and grumble at our city fathers for making the change they have, but while you truly speak of their superior efforts, we only ask you to do simple justice to our humble endeavors in assisting our more powerful brothers in their good work.

Torrent.

Editors Press and Tribune:

Is it possible for anything to be done to compell the bell ringer located near Engine House No. 13, to attend to his duty; he is so notoriously neglectful and careless, that it has become a perfect nuisance. It is a fact capable of being proved at any time, that during the past five months he has struck the wrong district twice out of every three times there has been a fire, and at the recent great conflagration the bell was not rung at all until the Court House bell had rung nearly ten minutes, and then notwithstanding the Court House bell gave the correct No. four, this nuisance of ours rung the 2d district as long as it was any use to ring at all, and this same thing has been repeated time after time.

Our worthy Chief has been complained to a number of times in regard to it, but still there is no improvement. What can be done?

Board of Education.

Meeting of the Board of Education, Chicago, Sept. 17, 1859.

Exaggerations of Loss by Fire.

Editors Press and Tribune:

The fire of Thursday night was very disastrous, but the aggregate loss has been much exaggerated by the reporters for the daily papers. Your Reporters estimate it at half a million of dollars. The Journal's at $600,000, and the Times, Herald, and Democrat range from five to seven hundred thousand. But all these figures are considerably too high. Persons who have means of estimating pretty correctly, are not able to foot up the property consumed to more than $300,000, and hardly that much. The actual loss is about half what the newspapers make it. The aggregate insurance is not far from $150,000, which covers one-half of the whole destruction, and thereby mitigates the loss sustained very essentially.

What led the Reporters to err so largely was the valuing of buildings and machinery at what they cost three or four years ago. This is a very erroneous standard, because a building that cost $20,000 four years since can be replaced this year for very little more than half the money. A million feet of common lumber that was formerly worth $14,000 can now be purchased for half the sum. A great deal of furniture and other moveable property was saved by removal, but still counted in the fire reports as destroyed.

In regard to the loss on buildings I will specify a few instances of exaggerated values. The Cleveland House is put down as being worth $37,000. There are a dozen builders who will contract to replace it for less than $20,000: property must be estimated at what it was worth when consumed, and not what it may have cost during the inflated times of past years. The insurance on the Cleveland House is stated to be $15,000, which pretty well covers the actual loss sustained. The papers put down the value of the Cochrane House at $60,000. It was a solidly built, substantial structure, which can be duplicated this fall for $30,000; the building has long been empty and idle, and was earning nothing.

The Hydraulic Mills I observed, is valued at $15,000. The owner would no doubt have been glad to have taken half that money for it. The Lead Works building is also estimated many thousand dollars higher than it would now cost to rebuild it. The machine shops of Mason, McArthur & Warrington, are all estimated at double what they were worth at the time they were consumed.

What I have said in regard to the brick buildings is also applicable to the frame ones, destroyed. I think it bad policy to send abroad those exaggerated reports of the damage sustained by this, or other fires. The truth is bad enough, and nothing is gained by making it worse than it is, except to gratify a morbid feeling in the human breast that loves to contemplate great horrors and terrible destruction—whether of property or life.

Veritas.

We were unable to procure the amount of Walter Lull's loss by the recent fire, in time for our last issue. We have since ascertained it to be as follows Loss in the yard by his office, $20,810; insured for $7,500. Loss in the yard two blocks back from the river, $1,200: no insurance. Total loss, $22,010. This is a severe loss on a very worthy and much respected man.

The types make the loss of A. S. Kedzie $24,000 on frame house: it should read $2,400 of course.

The Blind and Sash Factory of F. I. Roech was insured for $3,000 instead of $300, as stated.

Our figures put the loss of T. M. Avery & Co. too high. They had a little over three million feet of lumber burned, valued at $30,000 and insured for $15,000. They have two yards untouched, containing between three and four million feet, comprising their best and highest priced lumber. Their loss is severe, but not so much as was first reported by $10,000.

The insurance on the Cleveland House was $15,000 instead $20,000, and the building was worth about $20,000, instead of $37,000, which was what it may have cost several years ago.

The $1,000 Purse.—Editors Press and Tribune;—Your paper of this morning contains a sketch of some explanatory remarks made by Gen. Tilghman upon the conditions imposed by the U. S. Society on all competing horses for the citizens' purse of $1,000, won by the horse Ike Cook, on Saturday last; and as the President's words place the contest in a very different light from what the result warrants, I should feel obliged to you or others to explain to the horse breeders, farmers, &c., of the country why a thirteen year old turf horse, showing no strikingly good points of utility, is preferred to such an animal as "Magna Charta," a four year old stallion, going his mile in 2:35¼, or seven year old mare, making the mile in 2:33½? Gen. Tilghman said it was "inconsistent with the established rules of the Society" that the premium "should be offered for a trial of speed alone"—thus placing the award on merit and utility. Then why were the stallion and mare above mentioned, passed over by the judges without some public recognition of their first class qualities in the contest? It is the universal opinion of all present, excepting sporting men, that these animals are worth more in gold or in past and coming benefits to the stock of the country, than all the old geldings competing for the premium. Again I ask, wherein lies the consistency between the President's remarks and the judges' award?

Yours, for fair play,
Toxophilite.

More Hose Wanted.—The Chief Engineer has been complaining ever since his election that the steamers were not adequately supplied with hose. The hand engine hose cannot be used to any advantage, as it is not strong enough to resist the strain of the steam pumps. At the fire on Thursday night the hose of two steamers burst, at the very crisis of the battle with the fire, before it crossed Fulton street. These engines were disabled for fifteen minutes before the break could be remedied, and when they were again ready to come into action the fire had crossed the street and gained such a lodgement among the lumber piles that it swept the entire block, and even crossed Carroll street. We verily believe that if the engines had all been properly supplied with hose, the fire would have been confined within the square where it first originated. It is true that the treasury is bare of money; still a few thousand feet of the right kind of hose might have been procured. The Insurance Companies will, we are very confident, purchase 10,000 feet of hose, and present it to the steamers, if the city will agree to pay them back within a year, or any reasonable, or even unreasonable time.

There will be another big fire one of these days. In the nature of things fires will continue to occur, and once every six or ten months there will come a devastating conflagration—sweeping away property on whole squares. The next great fire may be next week or next month, and we think the Comptroller would do well to strain a point, and get a few thousand feet of suitable hose. If he can't raise the money to pay for it, and is enjoined from purchasing on credit, let him go around with a subscription paper. We will subscribe in proportion to our property, and more too. What good are steam engines and paid firemen if they have no hose through which to throw the water? As well might a regiment be sent to battle without muskets with which to shoot. It may seem like locking the door after the horse is stolen, to ask for more hose after the fire; but there will be more fires, and bad ones. Better get a lock for the door before any more horses are stolen.

More Swindling.—If the swindling gamblers who control the movements of Flora Temple and Princess will call things by their right names, the public would perhaps part with their money less freely, but more honestly, to the horse proprietors aforesaid. This afternoon it is said that Flora Temple, Ike Cook, and Princess have been matched to go over the course at the Fair Grounds. It is all right that the public will rush to see Flora and Princess, and yet it were better to call it a "Horse Show with two entries." A match it is not and no one imagines it is. We doubt whether anything like the late eagerness so bitterly punished at the Garden City Course will be awakened to-day.—We think a great deal of Flora, but she travels in "mighty bad company," sufficient cause for her to blush to a bright bay, if she were not that color already.

The Fair Grounds.—"The day after the Fair" has become a proverb expressive of desolation and a general sense of "goneness" supervening on a full tide of events, scenes and incidents. The Fair Grounds are fast relapsing back into their normal state, their buildings, late so attractive and bustling, are now only lumber to be disposed of as such. But for the rain of yesterday, a large share of the articles would have been removed; as it was, much had been done at dismantling, and there were plenty of reminders that the Great Exhibition was over. The lumber of the fences, sheds and halls is to be sold at auction.

Ferry's Circular Log and Siding Mills.—Seventh National Exhibition.—Chicago, Sept. 12-17.—Class 103—Stationary Saw Mills. First premium of a grand silver medal to Wm. M. Ferry, jr., of Ferrysburg, Michigan. Portable Saw Mill. Highest premium awarded a bronze medal to Wm. M. Ferry, jr., Ferrysburg, Michigan. Report signed by B. P. Johnson, Secretary New York State Agricultural Association, Chairman Committee 103.

Attest, Ben. Perley Poor, Sec'y U. S. Ag. Society.

From the above certificate our readers will see the result at the United States Fair of the competition in Sawing Machinery.

Our stated opinion of the superior excellence of Mr. Ferry's Circular Saw Mills has been verified by the Secretary of the New York State Agricultural Society, Mr. B. P. Johnson, who was the Chairman of the Committee of that department.

The entire simplicity, strength and durability of the machines as well as the accuracy of the work performed, in uniform thickness of the lumber manufactured by them, will commend their general use. From the time the engine in the machinery hall made its first revolution, to the close of the Fair on Saturday evening, Mr. Ferry's Siding Mill was in constant motion, attracting crowds of interested visitors. To see machinery perfectly self-operative—a saw mill feeding, gigging and setting to entire accuracy, and dropping the lumber nicely manufactured at so rapid a rate, was a novelty in the prairies of Illinois.

Honor to whom Honor is Due.—As was to be expected, the first premium for best "Business Penmanship," and the first premium for best "Book Keeping," were awarded at the late United States Fair to Bryant, Bell & Stratton's Commercial College. Indeed, in these departments this popular institution defies all competition, as the Principals themselves are at the very head of their profession, and bring to their aid a corpse of teachers in every branch, of the highest talent and of superior qualifications.

In the really elegant exhibition at the Fair, by these gentlemen, was a splendid and costly picture, some six feet in length, beautifully illustrating their "Great chain of National Commercial Colleges"—of which the Chicago Institution constitutes a prominent link, representing a temple of the Grecian order with its arch supporting the chain, in the links of which were shown elegantly executed Photographs of the several College buildings as located in the citites of Chicago, New York, Philadelphia, Albany, Buffalo, Cleveland and Detroit.

The design was very ingenious, yet chaste and tasteful; the execution by gilding and embossing on glass—a comparatively new art—was masterly; presenting a work most elegant and rich which commanded the admiration and elicited the encomiums of all the visitors to the great Hall of Art.

A sight of this picture now hanging in their College rooms will well repay a visit from those of our citizens who have not seen it.

The marked success this Institution has achieved in its speciality, places it in the very front rank of its class, and its just claims on the support of the public, we are glad to see, are acknowledged by the bestowal of a patronage entirely unparalleled in the country.

Accident on the Chicago and Milwaukee Railroad.—An accident occurred on the Chicago and Milwaukee Railroad, yesterday, at Racine. The passenger train which left Milwaukee at 10 A. M. for this city, ran into a baggage-car which had been left standing on a switch too near the main track, demolishing the car, damaging the locomotive considerably, tearing up a section of the rails and injuring the fireman, though not seriously.

United States Fair—The Silver Medal Stoves.—The Sand Oven Economist Cooking Stove has received at the late exhibition in this city, the Large Silver Medal, it being the highest prize. This has been obtained in contest with several of the best stoves in the country. The public will sanction the judgment of the committee. We believe that this stove combines more desirable qualities than any other. The large sale already achieved in this city, will now be rapidly increased. No one in want of a good stove will fail to examine it.

The "Blazing Star" Smoke and Gas Burner, for the use of Illinois Coal, is an elegant stove for parlors, halls, stores, &c. This also received the first prize. It is a continuous burner. The fire only requires to be made once during the season. It is a self-feeder, and not one quarter the trouble to manage as other stoves. It only requires to be known to be generally adopted.

The "Star of the North" heating stove for hard coal has taken several premiums at former fairs. It is a genuine gas burner, and has attained a great popularity both here and at the East.

It is doubtful if three better stoves can be found in the world. They are manufactured by the well-known firm of W. & J. Treadwell, Perry & Norton, Albany, N. Y., and for sale at retail in this city by those reliable dealers, A. R. & G. H. Miller, No. 237 State street, and A. F. Becker, No. 206 Randolph street. Call and see them. sep19-1w

TUESDAY SEPTEMBER 20, 1859.

DOUGLAS LOSES NEW YORK.

Prominent among the New York delegates to the Charleston Convention are Augustus Schell, Collector of the port of New York, John Kelly, John Cochrane, and Erastus Corning, Members of Congress, who voted for the Lecompton Constitution through thick and thin, Gouverneur Kemble who ran for Congress against John B. Haskin last fall, and Isaiah Rynders, U. S. Marshal for the Southern District of New York—all straight-out Lecomptonites, and uncompromising enemies of Douglas. The entire delegation is classified by the N. Y. Herald thus:

For Dickinson	26
For Douglas	21
For Seymour, Guthrie, Buchanan, Wise, and various Lecomptonites	27
Whole number	74
Majority required to cast the vote of the State	38

By this showing Dickinson is required to get but eleven votes from the friends of Buchanan, Guthrie, Wise, and the other Lecomptonites, to secure the whole strength of New York in the Charleston Convention—the State Convention having instructed the delegates to vote as a unit, instead of frittering away their power on half-a-dozen scrub candidates, as heretofore. Douglas, on the other hand, requires sixteen votes to get the delegation, which number must be drawn, not from the ranks of common rivals, occupying substantially his position, but from bitter and determined enemies, who refuse to recognize him as a Democrat. The "unit" rule was evidently adopted by the Convention to prevent Douglas' getting a single vote from the State at Charleston, while apparently giving his friends a fair sprinkling of delegates. Wood and his ruffians count for nothing. It appears that Fernando and the Benicia Boy, after adjourning to the private room of the former, took up the "honesty dodge," and essayed to blanket themselves with respectability by referring the question of delegates back to the people in the Congressional districts—a proceeding which will receive about as much attention in the rural districts as an edict from Tom Hyer, calling for an amendment of the Constitution. The bullies were indifferently for Wise or Douglas for the Presidency. Archbishop Hughes would have settled their preferences at once in favor of the latter if they had gained a foothold in the regular delegation.

The influence of New York on the States which are yet to elect Charleston delegates, will be fatal to Douglas. Seventy-four votes lost to the squatter sovereign at one stroke, will create a panic in New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Indiana and California, which will sweep out of sight the few chances he may once have had of carrying those States in the nominating convention. The entire North would fail of carrying him through in face of the two-thirds rule, but it is now shown that he cannot depend upon a bare majority. Let him write another essay for Harper, and he will need a certificate from the Supreme Court to prove that he was ever an aspirant for Presidential honors.

AN OLD TRICK.

Senator Douglas broke out venomously on Attorney General Black at Wooster, Ohio, the other day, calling him a "base calumniator," and pronouncing his late article in the Constitution in reply to the copyright essay, "a tissue of falsehood from beginning to end." He is thus reported by his Ohio organ, the Cincinnati Enquirer. This is an old Douglas trick. Whenever a political opponent fastens an inconsistency or a fraud upon him by the rules of logic, he retorts in the language of the barroom. That was his style in debate with Lincoln last fall; and we notice that his manners have not improved since. The particular matter which called for the blackguardism at Wooster was the argument in Black's essay that Douglas advocated the confiscation of private property in certain contingencies. Douglas made no argument in reply, but repeated and reiterated the "lie" half a dozen times.

In point of fact, Mr. Black told the straight-out truth. Douglas holds that slaves are property and so recognized by the Constitution of the United States. He asserts everywhere that the people of the Territories "may control it as property," even to the extent of taxing it out of existence. In illustrating his position during the last session of Congress, he stated that the people of the Territories might not only tax slavery out of existence, but they might tax mules out of existence. If this is not equivalent to asserting that private property may be confiscated, then is Judge Black a "base calumniator." If it is equivalent—as nine out of ten candid men will unhesitatingly declare—then is Senator Douglas a point-blank falsifier.

THAT ANNUAL FAIR.

The ease, cheapness and rapidity with which people from the adjoining States of Michigan, Indiana, Iowa, Wisconsin and Minnesota may be set down in this city, by means of our numerous railroads, which radiate from this central point in every direction; the hotel accommodations and the proverbial hospitality of our people, which have proved sufficient, during the last week, for the boarding and lodging, without inconvenience, of the largest crowd that ever assembled in the Northwest; the interest felt here in the agricultural and industrial development of this portion of the Union; and above all the community of interest which binds the people of Chicago and Illinois to the States that we have named,—all point to this city as the place which should be the seat of the greatest, most powerful and useful Agricultural Society of the United States. Here is the heart and centre of the great grain growing and cattle raising interests of the Union; here is the chief mart in which the numerous products of the Northwest are gathered for eastern and foreign markets; here must be the seat of the manufacturing industry which will supply the farmers of a vast and ever increasing area with the domestic commodities which they are forced to buy. Here, then, is the point where the agricultural society that will cast the greatest lustre upon the farmer's pursuit, and which will eclipse the National Society in the attractiveness of its annual exhibitions, should be located. And we are glad to know that our people, who are so well satisfied with the Fair just closed, are taking steps to put that contemplated Socity into operation as one of the leading institutions of the West, and as one of the most powerful aids to the usefulnes of the State and County Societies within its scope. But it must be expected that opposition will be encountered. The cliques who have possession or the State Societies, and who draw the farmers together to see the best premiums carried off by the scrubby bulls and spavined horses of the managers, or their sons, or neighbors, or cousins, or sombody inside of the circle, and who pay themselves big salaries for easy places, will kick at the idea of a great organization that will overtop their shows, correct their blunders and teach them that the making of awards shall be fairly and intelligently conducted; but their struggles and their appeals will be vain. The people want to see this business put upon its proper basis. Fairs have become the festivals of the farmers, and they want them got up on a scale commensurate with the importance of the interests which they represent; they want to see State competing with State—Illinois with Indiana—Wisconsin with Michigan and Iowa with Minnesota—and when they go to a show they want that which will afford them the greatest amount of profit and pleasure for their money. The farmers, then, from the States we have named, may safely go ahead with the enterprise which they talked over here, and to which we now refer. They will find that their brethren of the plow and workshop are with them, and that the citizens of Chicago will generously respond to any reasonable demand that they may make. Let us, by all means, then, have the Northwestern Society and the Annual Fair.

Spiritualism in Politics.—The Spiritual Age of Boston, recommends that the spiritualists go into politics as a separate party, and nominate a spiritualistic ticket.

Illinois in the Field of Politics.

Lincoln, Trumbull and Douglas are in Ohio, stumping for their respective friends; Farnsworth, Washburne and Kreismann are in Minnesota, warmly engaged in a similar work. There are plenty more at home. With nothing but county elections coming off this Fall, we can spare any number of first-rate men to help along the Republican cause. How many do Iowa and Wisconsin want?

Douglas at Wooster, Ohio.

Mr. Douglas' speech at Wooster, Ohio, was only a rehash of his proposition, that "Slavery may be lawfully driven (by unfriendly legislation) from a place where (by the Dred Scott decision) it may lawfully remain." We cannot say that his success was flattering to himself or satisfactory to anybody. In the course of his harangue, he indulged in an exceedingly intemperate and abusive attack upon Judge Black, the Attorney General of the United States, and the able reviewer of late patent-right essay in Harper's Magazine. Otherwise it was all "my principle."

Letter from W. R. Arthur.

Ill. Central R. R. Sup't's Office,
Chicago, Sept. 17, 1759.

Editors Press and Tribune:

I see in your paper of this morning, an article which reflects unfairly upon the Illinois Central Railroad for the manner in which persons were carried to and from the Garden City Course on yesterday.

I was called upon to run a train to a point opposite the race course, to accommodate those wishing to visit that place, but for many good reasons refused to do so. I informed the person calling on me that our regular trains could attach some open or gondola cars, and stop on the downward trip and let off passengers, and take them up again on the return trip, and that the regular fare on through trains would be charged, which is twenty-five cents Upon the second downward trip, after three o'clock P. M., the races being over, a great many persons were waiting to return, and got on the train for that purpose, but inasmuch as the train had not completed its run, they were carried to Wood Lawn, where they had to remain until the regular card time for returning. This train, having a heavier load than usual, did not arrive at the depot on time, and, of course, became irregular, and had to wait an opportunity to get in; but the great number and length of trains leaving the depot at this time caused a very unpleasant though unavoidable delay in the "filing."

There have been run in and out of the Central Depot daily, ninety-three regular schedule trains, in addition to a great many irregular ones, many of them having from fifteen to twenty-five cars, carrying over forty thousand persons in and out of the depot daily, without a single person being injured, or a train delayed, except the one above referred to, a performance which entitles the parties having the immediate charge and direction of the trains to my fullest confidence and commendation, and should that of a reasonable public, and would undoubtedly that of your reporter had he reflected.

Yours, &c., W. R. Arthur.

PERSONAL AND POLITICAL.

—The Manchester (England) Guardian says Mrs. Stowe is in England, engaged upon the completing portion of her new work, "The Minister's Wooing," which will be issued entire in about a month.

—A breach of promise case has recently been tried at Catlin, Chemung County, N. Y., and the defendant, D. C. Kimball, has been adjudged to have disappointed the slighted lady, Miss Amelia M. Masters, to the extent of $1,000. The case has made much scandal, for the defendant testified that the fair Amanda had voluntarily become his wife de facto, if not de jure. As the parties are what is called "respectable," the affair furnishes ample food for the village gossips.

Professor Agassiz was to embark at Liverpool, on his return home, last Saturday. His visit to Europe has been, in all respects, satisfactory. He was received in the most cordial and distinguished manner by the scientific men of England, France and Switzerland. He has passed most of his time among his relatives in Switzerland, but during his absence has made purchases for the Museum of Natural History. Prof. Agassiz will re-open his school for young ladies at Cambridge in October.

—The Boston Courier says the New York Democratic State Convention assembled at Syracuse on Wednesday morning, but before there had been time to offer up the usual prayer, the rivals were fighting.

—Wm. Holmes, the Troy merchant, of the "spiritual" faith, who left his wife and run away with an "affinity," has written a letter from Chicago to the Troy Budget, in which he says:

"To set at rest forever any supposition that I am a 'fugitive,' I will at once say that I am now in the City of Chicago, enjoying, not as the article in question would represent, the confidence and affection of one of my children, but the full confidence of three of them, and that unless a most cruel fortune deprives me of them, I expect to remain here, and by honest industry support them. That I have left my wife is most true, and that I never shall, under any circumstances, live with her again, is equally true. To do otherwise would be to throw away the only peace of mind that is left to me. For eighteen years I have tried to secure my peace in married life. * * It is thrown out by way of foreclosing all defense on my part, that I am a Spiritualist. They hope by this cry of 'mad dog' to crush me at once. They quote my letters to prove it. Those letters prove that I have aspirations for a social life beyond that of the brutes—in a word, I am guilty of that most monstrous of heresies—'believing that affection, love and congeniality, are indispensable to happiness in married life.' So be it. I cannot change that opinion."

—Mr. Douglas has lost his only South Carolina organ. The Edgefield Advertiser, which has hitherto advocated his nomination, says his article in Harper's Magazine, renders it impossible for the South to support him.

Our Militia.—It is said that the militia of the United States number 2,766,726, of which about 2,700,000 are infantry, 20,000 cavalry, 12,000 artillery, and 34,000 riflemen.

THE MANCHESTER RIOT.

Particulars of the Firemen's Riot at Manchester, N. H.

The Boston Journal publishes full particulars of the riot which occurred on Thursday at Manchester, N. H. The origin of the difficulty is thus definitely stated:

The immediate cause of the riot was the open practice of gambling by at least a hundred sporting men in different sections of the city. The principal places occupied by the fraternity were two rooms in E. P. Offutt's building, on Elm street, a few doors south of Concord street and on Manchester street, a short distance from Elm street. Orfutt's auction room, No. 31 Elm street was leased to the gamblers, and a room in the same building, No. 29 Elm street, occupied by a Mr. Underhill as a bowling and drinking saloon, was fitted up by the gamblers with prop tables, sweat cloths, California lottery, roulette tables, wheels of fortune, and other devices of chance. These places were crowded during the day and evening with firemen, who bet their money freely, and lost to a corresponding extent.

At a few minutes before 11 o'clock, a dispute arose in the auction room, No. 31, the origin of which, owing to the conflicting statements afloat, cannot be readily ascertained. It is contended by the firemen that one of their number received a counterfeit five dollar bill, and another story is to the effect that he received a one dollar bill when it should have been a five. The parties in possession of the establishment would have it appear that one of the firemen stole a pile of money amounting to $32. But in whatever manner the difficulty arose, certain it is that a body of firemen, friends of the one concerned in the affair, entered the place and demanded reparation. Inflamed by drink, and sensitive to a degree at their losses, the firemen commenced an indiscriminate attack upon the gamblers and their implements. Tables were broken up and missiles hurled at the heads of the fraternity. About one hundred firemen crowded into the room, but were forced back by the gamblers, who, in order to intimidate the firemen, fired several pistol shots, which did no further harm than marring the ceiling. A fireman was struck on the head with a bottle, and in his flight, leaped from a front window into a cellar way, falling down a flight of stairs, and injuring him severely. He was conveyed to the Elm street House, but there being no accommodations for him he was taken to a private residence. During the melee, the gamblers gathered up their implements and forcing the invaders from the room, secured the door, and fled from the rear of the building. They had scarcely left the place when the firemen, their numbers constantly augmenting as the report of the disturbance gained currency, renewed the attack upon the building. They forced the door, and with oaths and terrible imprecations upon the gamblers, smashed the windows, tables, and such implements as they could find, and then commenced an attack upon the room adjoining, which was ostensibly a bowling saloon. Here they demolished the windows, counters, bar and fixtures, and carried away, drank or destroyed about $300 worth of liquors, cigars, &c. The excitement momentarily increased. Hundreds of firemen rushed to the scene, and united in the shouts of "clean out the gamblers." The police force was entirely inadequate to the suppression of the riot. The regular force of the department numbered less than thirty, but for the purpose of preserving the peace of the city during the muster, about seventy five extra policemen were appointed, but had not been sworn in. Those on duty were scattered about the city, and the rioters consequently had everything their own way, and continued their riotous conduct for several hours, to the terror of law abiding citizens, who looked about in vain for the power to suppress the tumult.

MR. TRUMBULL IN OHIO.

His Opinion of the Patent Right Essay.

JUDGE BLACK REVIEWED.

[From the Cleveland Herald, 16th.]

It had been arranged that Senator Pugh, of Ohio, for the Democrats, and Senator Trumbull of Illinois, for the Republicans, should have a discussion, in the evening. The challenge was given by the friends of Pugh. That gentleman did not "come up to the scratch." His friends said they had telegraphed to him all over the State, but could not find him. He was probably where he certainly would have been after the proposed discussion—nowhere.

Senator Trumbull spoke in the evening at the Melodeon. The house was crowded to its utmost capacity, and large numbers failed to find an entrance. Judge Tilden took the Chair and introduced the speaker.

Senator Trumbull said he was happy at the thought of appearing before an Ohio audience, though he had no new doctrines or principles of government to expound. We always look to Ohio as the Empire State of the West—as the State that has taken the lead in defence of human rights—as the principal bulwark against the encroachments of slavery.

The present political parties of the country are of recent origin. Neither dates back more than five years. This is as true of the so called Democratic party as it is of the Republican party. The principles now held by the Republicans are not new principles. They have existed since the foundation of the Union, though under different names. In the days of Jefferson they were called Republican; in the days of Jackson they became Democratic; in the days of Pierce and Buchanan they are called Republican. Names are of no account. Principles are everything.

Prior to 1854 the question of the day related to matters of finance, to protective tariffs, and to the United States Banks. In 1854 all this was changed, and the great question became one of Freedom or Slavery. On this question alone are the present great parties constructed. The Democratic party requires no other test than this. Old Whigs, who still subscribe to the Henry Clay doctrines on Tariff and Finance, if they only agree to the Kansas-Nebraska Act and the spread of slavery, become born anew, and are good reliable Democrats. The Democratic Church has wide open doors. All sorts of opinions can get in easily, on compliance with one little obligation. There are no Thirty-nine Articles to subscribe to. Only confess your faith in the Kansas-Nebraska act, and you become a member in good standing.

The primary question between the two parties is, whether the Territories shall be kept free and so form Free States, or whether they should all be open to the encroachments of slavery, and eventually become Slave States. This is the great point of dispute. But beyond this there is another matter. The question then becomes whether or not the Executive power shall be wielded for the advantage of the slavery extensionists. The Democratic party act in the affirmative of this question. For years when in power they made the appointment of Executive officers with this end in view.

The policy of the Republican party is first to keep the Territories free from slavery. We do not want to interfere with slavery in the States where it is already established by law. But if the Republican party were in power we should expect that our foreign ministers and home judges would not endeavor to acquire territory and interpret laws solely for the express purpose of extending slavery. There is a great cry about the Republicans wanting to legislate against the South. The Republican party does not want to do so. Its design is to legislate for the benefit of the whole country. There are only 350,000 slaveholders among the 6,000,000 white population of the South, or the 20,000,000 white population of the whole Union. The party calling itself Democratic legislates for the benefit of these 350,000 and against the balance of the 20,000,000. Call you this Democracy? It is building up a class at the expense of the many. It is creating an actual Aristocracy.

There is some difficulty in defining the exact doctrines of the Democratic party, but it appears to be laid down in an article contained in some of the Democratic prints within a few days, and which is attributed to Attorney General Black, the highest legal officer of the Administration.

He there says:

"The Constitution certainly does not establish slavery in the Territories nor anywhere else. Nobody in this country ever thought or said so. But the Constitution regards as sacred and inviolable all the rights which a citizen may legally acquire in a State. If a man acquires property of any kind in a State, and goes with it into a Territory, he is not for that reason to be stripped of it. Our simple and plain proposition is, that the legal owner of a slave or other chattel may go with it into a Federal Territory without forfeiting his title.

"Who denies the truth of this, and upon what ground can it be controverted? The reasons which support it are very obvious and very conclusive. As a jurist and a statesman Mr. Douglas ought to be familiar with them, and there was a time when he was supposed to understand them very well. We will briefly give him a few of them.

"It is an axiomatic principle of public law that a right of property, a private relation, condition, or status, lawfully existing in one State or country, is not changed by the mere removal of the parties to another country, unless the law of that country be in direct conflict with it."

Now if, as Judge Black holds, the Constitution gives a citizen of any State a right to take his property into a Territory and there hold it as if under the laws of the State from which he emigrated, then it legislates slavery into that Territory; if a man can take his slave from Missouri into Kansas, and hold him there according to the laws of Missouri, under the Constitution, then slavery is legislated into Kansas by the Constitution. But the Constitution does no such thing, nor does Judge Black attempt to prove by the Constitution itself that it does. He first asserts the argument to be fact, treats it as a thing never questioned, and then goes on to claim it as "an axiomatic principle of Common Law." The principle is right enough as far as common property is concerned, but is of no force in regard to the property of man in man. Common Law does not touch that.—Slavery is founded on a different principle from the right to ordinary property. It is founded on power and might; not on right.

The right to common property comes from God. At the creation He gave man power over all things animate and inanimate other than man himself. We nowhere find that He gave man command over man.

If, as Judge Black affirms, the great law of the civilized world gives a man right to hold property in a Territory in strict accordance with the law of the land from which he comes, what is there to prevent a Russian noble from bringing his serf to a Territory, and there holding him in bondage? What bar against a Guinea negro bringing his slave, captured from another tribe, and holding him in bondage?

But it gives no such power. The Common Law of England disowns this idea, and has been repeatedly declared to be founded on the principles of liberty. The spirit of the Common Law has been eloquently declared in the words:

> "Slaves cannot breath in England: if their lungs
> Receive our air, that moment they are free;
> They touch our country, and their shackles fall."

Even the Southern Courts have repeatedly decided that Slavery is a creature of local enactments and not born of the Common Law.

The Cincinnati Platform agrees with Judge Black in saying that the Constitution carries Slavery into a Territory. One of the planks in that platform says:

Resolved, That we recognize the right of the people of all the Territories, including Kansas and Nebraska, acting through the legally and fairly expressed will of a majority of actual residents, and whenever the number of their inhabitants justifies it, to form a Constitution, with or without domestic slavery, and be admitted into the Union upon terms of perfect equality with the other States.

Mark that, you Popular Sovereignty Democrats! You can exclude Slavery from a Territory when the number of its inhabitants justifies it—not before! That is the effect of that clause. If you owned a farm, and told a boy at work on it that he might come up to the house at three o'clock, and he came up at one o'clock, would you not send him back? Would you not insist that telling him he might come up at three was in fact forbidding him to come before that hour? So slavery goes into the Territory under the Constitution, and you cannot legislate it out.—You have no power over it until your numbers justify your formation of a Constitution and admission to the Union. Is that your Popular Sovereignty?

"Popular Sovereignty" is a cheat. It is impracticable. I denounce it as subversive of the Constitution if carried out. It never can be carried out. It is a mere catchword, and not one of its advocates has ever acted on its principles. The principle is good enough to a certain extent, and in its proper place, but as taught by its pretended advocates it is nonsensical and revolutionary.

The speaker here read from the article by Douglas in Harpers' Magazine. He said it was copy-righted to prevent its being stolen. It also should have been patented to prevent imitations. It would be a pity if more such nonsense were inflicted on the world. The fallacies of the article were shown up in a masterly manner, and caused immense laughter by the ridiculous light in which it was exhibited.

There never was a greater fallacy than that this country is ruled by a popular majority. The chief use of the Constitution is to protect the rights of the minority against the power of the popular majority.

The Constitutions of the separate States and of the United States provide a series of checks against the improper use of their power by the popular majority. In the General Government the House is the only branch elected by the popular vote. The number of representatives is based on the amount of population. In the Senate it is different. There each State has two Senators and no more. The little State of Florida, with its sparse population, has the same voice in the Senate as the great State of New York, with its multitudes of inhabitants. In the election of President, both principles come into operation. The number of electors to each State is regulated not only by the number of Representatives, but also by the number of Senators. The popular majority branch of the Government may pass an act, but before it can become a law it has to receive the assent of the other two branches not elected according to the popular majority principle.

It therefore follows that the doctrine that the popular majority should have absolute rule is clearly revolutionary and subversive of the Constitution.

The popular sovereignty doctrine, if carried out, would give the Territories greater power than possessed by the States. In the States there is a constitutional check on the popular majority, but it is claimed that in the Territory there should be none. A Territory is not one of the States of the Union; if, therefore, it has power to govern itself independently, it is not in the Union at all—it becomes an independent country.

But the Kansas-Nebraska Act does not give this Popular Sovereignty power to the Territories, although it is claimed that it does. It is said that by that act the people are left perfectly free to govern themselves in their own way, just as much as the people of Pennsylvania. Let us look at the facts.

The President of the United States appoints a Governor. He appointed a Governor for Kansas. If the Governor does not suit his views, he can replace him without consulting the wishes of the people. He has sent several to Kansas. Ohio has furnished two of them. That Governor is clothed with a two-thirds veto power. Is that leaving the people perfectly free to govern themselves? Would the people of Pennsylvania submit to that?

There is in Kansas a Legislature composed of twenty-five members, and a Council or Senate, with thirteen members. Suppose both Legislature and Council pass a bill, and Gov. Medary writes at the bottom—"I veto this bill." What then? The whole twenty five legislators may pass the bill over the Governor's veto. Eight of the Council also voted for the bill. But five of the Council support the veto, and these six men override the thirty-three! Is that Popular Sovereignty?

The President appoints the Governor, the Judges, the Attorneys and the Marshals, and yet it is claimed that the people of a Territory can govern themselves!

But, after all, it is said that the people are free to maintain or exclude Slavery. So Popular Sovereignty means a right to make a slave out of a negro! Can Despotism go farther?

Douglas wishes to make it appear that the Revolution arose out of the question of Slavery. He should read history better. The great cause was the question of taxation without representation, and in the Declaration of Independence one of the complaints made against King George was—"He has made judges dependent on his will alone;"—just what is done in the Kansas-Nebraska Act.

The speaker recapitulated the history of Territorial organizations, showing that in every instance up to the last, slavery was excluded by the respective acts of organization. In the course of his remarks he showed that in annexing Texas a resolution was adopted, excluding slavery from that portion of the Territory north of 36 deg. 30 min. An amendment was also adopted, providing that in case new States should be formed out of the Territory of Texas lying north of 36 deg. 30 min., slavery should be prohibited in such States. The father of this amendment was Stephen A. Douglas, the apostle of the Non-intervention and Popular Sovereignty doctrine.

In commenting on the Dred Scott decision, he remarked that Chief Justice Marshall long ago decided that Congress had combined Federal and State jurisdiction over the Territories. Why should the Supreme Court at this later day set up its extra-judicial decision in direct opposition to the long settled interpretations given by the Fathers of the Republic?

There is a great cry of non-intervention raised. Who are the men who commenced intervention? None other than these same popular sovereignty men. When the compromise measures of 1850 were accepted, it was agreed that the slavery question should not again be opened up.—Yet in 1854 these men "intervened" by repealing the compromise, and beginning the fight anew. Having done this, they cry out "non-intervention!" It is as if a house-breaker were to come into your house, turn you out of doors, and then tell you there must be no intervention. He has peaceable possession of the house and you must not interfere with him. Freedom having been thrown out of the window, and slavery let in at the door, there must be no "intervention" to restore freedom to its rights!

Every vote given by the Northern Democracy but serves to extend the area of slavery. The Democratic Congressmen from the North, when they go into caucus, are in a hopeless minority. They must vote according to Southern dictation or they will be read out of church. One in every sixty of the white population of the country is a slaveholder. To be a Democrat in this day is to vote for the one man against the interests of the fifty-nine. Will you do it? Will you so disgrace yourself as to give additional power to the slavery extensionists?

The policy of the Republican party is simply this: to let the slaves in the slave States remain as they are—we do not profess to have any right to meddle with them. But we do claim to have a right to so frame the laws for the organization of the new Territories that the best interests of the people of the Territories and the whole nation shall be properly protected.

Repeated bursts of applause greeted the speaker during the speech, and enthusiastic cheers were given as he took his seat.

ANOTHER RIOT AT THE BERGEN TUNNEL.

Erie Railroad Blockaded by the Laborers

Stopping the Trains--Delay of the Mails--Military Awaiting Orders.

[From the N. Y. Times, 17th.]

The workmen employed on the Bergen Tunnel struck for their one month's back wages yesterday morning, and informed the contractor, Mr. Lyman, that they would work no longer until the same was paid. Mr. L., seeing there was trouble ahead, told the men that they were short of money at the present time, but that they should have their money the first of next month. This, it appears, satisfied a portion of the men, who were willing to resume work, but were prevented from so doing by the others, who declared they should not. Some dissatisfaction arose, and finally the workmen came to the conclusion that unless their wages were paid they would blockade the road at the junction of the Northern Railroad, which branches off from the Erie Road just back of Bergen Hill. The contractors remonstrated for some time with the men, but were unable to accomplish any good. Finally, at 11 o'clock, the workmen, to the number of two hundred, proceeded in squads from the contractor's office to the Erie Road, and taking the dirt-cars used in carrying the dirt and stones from the tunnel, switched them on to the main track, thereby blockading the main road. The 12 o'clock way-train from Patterson, N. J., was unable to pass, and all sorts of threats were made by the workmen to the conductor and engineer. The train was compelled to go back to Paterson.

The Cincinnati Express, due in this city at 2 o'clock, was also compelled to put back to Paterson. The various trains due West proceeded as far as the Slaughterhouse, and could get no further. Attempts were made to remove the cars, and the crowd of workmen bid defiance to those who had charge of the train. The trains were finally compelled to return to Jersey City. The superintendent of this division, Mr. W. Taylor, proceeded to the scene as early as 12 o'clock, but could not accomplish anything. Telegraphic dispatches were sent to the officers of the road, stating the facts, and up to 7 o'clock, none of them had made their appearance on the ground. Gentlemen doing business in this city, and residing along the line of the New York and Erie Road, collected together in groups about the Jersey City depot towards evening, discussing the probability of getting home, &c. All kinds of epithets were used against the workmen, and may there were who offered their services to go up and remove the obstruction. Their services, it appears, were not accepted. During the afternoon, word was sent to the Mayor of Hudson City for aid, and he gave orders to the military to turn out. But up to 10 o'clock they had not made their appearance. The Mayor himself appeared on the ground, and told the workmen they were violating the law, but they would not be influenced by anything he said. Word was then sent to Mayor Gregory, of Jersey City, and that gentleman did all he possibly could to restore order, but failed. The workmen ran to and fro, swearing they would not remove the cars until they received their wages. The Superintendent, seeing it was impossible to compromise the matter, sent word to Gen. Hatfield, of the Hudson County militia, to send several companies to remove the obstruction on the road.

At 7½ o'clock the crowd increased to all of four hundred, and notwithstanding the rain, they remained on the ground, shouting like a party of madmen. At 8 o'clock the crowd heard that the military were coming, and they immediately supplied themselves with stones and clubs, determined to resist any attempt that might be made by the military. Word was sent by Col. Gregory, of the Second Regiment, to the Superintendent, that they were in readiness and awaiting the orders of Sheriff Beatty, who, it appears could not be found. Messengers were sent every hour to that gentleman's residence in Bergen, but he was not there. The Colonel further remarked that he would not leave the armory until orders were received from the Sheriff. Thus matters remained, and a great many of the passengers came back to this City, while others took up their quarters inside of the cars at the depot, expecting that the difficulties would be put to rights by 12 o'clock. At 10 o'clock there was no probability of the obstruction being removed. The crowd still remained, and are apparently bent upon remaining all night. The United States mail was awaiting at the Erie Railroad depot, as well as several way trains. The military were still in readiness, waiting the orders of the Sheriff.

Up to 11 P. M., after diligent search, Sheriff Beatty could not be found. A portion of the crowd still remained on the ground, and were bent upon stopping all night. The mail train due in this city at 7:42, and the New York Express, due at 9:10, were ordered by the Division Superintendent to stop at Sufferns, and proceed to Piermont. This will enable the passengers to arrive in this City sometime during the morning. At 10½ o'clock the military were dismissed from further service. They will in all probability be recalled this morning.

THE SAN JUAN AFFAIR.

Gen. Scott Ordered to the Pacific Coast.

[From the N. Y. Herald, 17th.]

Our special despatch from Washington announces that Lieutenant General Scott has been ordered to the Pacific. General Scott goes to the Pacific to manage the difficulty which has recently sprung up between Great Britain and the United States respecting the boundaries of the territories of the two countries in that region. The latest accounts from the island of San Juan, the focus of the trouble, are to the 13th ult. At that date quiet prevailed, and the British and American forces remained as previously reported—the British vessels at anchor in the harbor, and the United States troops in camp on shore. But it was also reported that General Harney ordered all the troops at his disposal to reinforce the command on the Island, while Governor Douglas had directed additional British vessels of war to rendezvous at that point. Special messengers from both these commanders had recently reached Washington. Colonel Hawkins, the messenger of Governor Douglass, tarried long enough to deliver dispatches to Lord Lyons, the British Minister, and then sailed for England, to apprise the British government of the state of affairs. Although it is not apprehended that serious consequences will result from the action of General Harney, yet the President deems the matter to be of such gravity as to require the supervision of the skillful and cautious Lieutenant General of the army. He leaves for his post on the 20th inst.

THE GREAT DEMOCRATIC FISTICUFF.

The Delegation to Charleston.

THE DOUGLASITES FLOORED.

Correspondence of the N. Y. Herald.

Syracuse, Sept. 15, 1859.

Had it not been for the promptitude of John Cochrane yesterday morning, the Regency would have been, as far as Charleston goes and the organization of the State for the immediate future, blown to findless atoms. The Wood faction were unprepared for the lightning spring which he gave upon a chair, under the very nose of the Speaker, rendering it impossible not to give him the word. Certainly not over ten seconds elapsed from the "Begin, boys," which was the signal for Alvord's being hurried into the chair, to which he was not elected, and the commencement of Cochrane's speech to the resolution admitting the Mozart Hall people as delegates. Wood was the first to perceive Cochrane's movement, and rose within a second of him; but neither the yells of the front rank nor the menacing gestures of the bullies could get the floor away from the former. Probably, had Alvord been a more experienced conspirator, he would have ruled it out of order for any speeches to be made, excepting by his own friends. This would have been no more absurd than his subsequent decisions. But, unfortunately for his cause, he did not at first anticipate so inglorious and brief a reign.

Wood marshalled his men into the hall very early, made them take seats as he designated, the heaviest muscle in the centre—gentlemen like ex-Sheriff Willet being placed on the extreme flank. He pointed out the Benicia Boy's chair with marked and emphatic gesture, and then marched backward and forward before his troops, like a captain on field day. He was lividly pale, almost yellow, the muscles of his face tight ground, and with a dangerous look, which caused a bystander to remark, "What a picture for a Zouave!" After Cochrane had spoken for about a minute, Ray, Tom Ferris, Billy Wilson, Nealy Woods, Dan Linn, and the fighting boys generally, were evidently disgusted at receiving no sign to resort at once to "the last reason of the unterrified." When Alvord called him to order, however, for ceasing to stare him, as Speaker, directly in the face, they could not be entirely restrained, and for about ten minutes it looked as though a storm was going to break out with a vengeance. Rynders posted himself where the first blow was expected, and did wonders in keeping the peace. It may be said, even, that he prevented bloodshed, as a small, dangerous looking man stood back of Cochrane, with a pistol concealed under his coat, resolved on the first assault on the latter to blow out the brains of Fernando Wood.

The regency were greatly terrified. Cassidy was probably hidden away under a bed at home, at least he made no show of himself until several hours after all danger was over. Fowler, who is a late riser, was probably picking his teeth in his room after breakfast. Messages were sent to Richmond; but his jocund, burly form only rolled itself into the room after the squall had blown by. Pete Cagger was far more plucky, and excited no small amount of admiration by the noiseless, gentlemanly firmness with which he placed himself in front of Alvord, while the latter was answering Cochrane's question, whether the speaker was the supreme arbiter of parliamentary rule, by declaring, "Yes, that at least he (Mr. Alvord,) was," Cagger quietly exclaimed, the hour of twelve having arrived, I, as chairman of the committee, call the Convention to order, and move that John Stryker be appointed temporary chairman.

The "boys" never ought to have permitted this speech to have been ended. It was awfully disastrous to them, and their own tactics were deplorable. As a measure of prudence they ought to have killed Cagger, or at least thrown him out of the window before he could utter a word. Perhaps they had received no orders, or did not catch their cue with sufficient readiness. Nealy Woods' assault on Stryker, a small, sickly looking, amiable gentleman, finished their business. He was the wrong point of attack in the first place, and then, even in Tammany Hall, sneaking behind a man and striking him unawares, is not wholly approved of. Sheriff Willet and all of the "gentlemen" raised an outcry at the outrage—the greatest, all declare, that was ever witnessed at any Convention in the State. The Benicia Boy growled loudly against such a violation of the "rules of the ring."

In fact, the sympathy excited for Stryker carried disorder into the ranks of the Mozart Hall invaders themselves, and when Cochrane brought forward his resolution, moving that "as violence had been offered, and a further stay in the hall was inconsistent with the personal safety of the delegates, the Convention adjourn," the thing was up, and a complete victory ensued in behalf of law and order. The time had come to laugh instead of cry on the strange events of the preceding half hour. And material for merriment was not wanting in the remembrance of Alvord's blunt declaration, that "Parliamentary rule being unfitted for the present occasion, he took the responsibility of substituting for it his own arbitrary decisions." Cochrane asked him point blank if he did so, and he replied that he did. Like Jack Cade, "his mouth was the Parliament of England." Mingled swearing and laughing made up the sum of noise made by the delegates in descending the stairs, though all was subdued by emotions more tender upon witnessing Stryker limping, with extreme pain, from crowd to crowd, imploring that as little mention might be made of his sufferings as possible, lest it might get into the papers, and the feelings of his family be harrowed by what had been done.

The indignation of Hon. Daniel S. Dickinson and Edwin Croswell at the outrages which had been perpetrated, drew them completely out of their usual reserve. The "old Roman of the Susquehanna" desired that his "reprobation of the whole affair, from beginning to end, might receive the utmost publicity; and Mr. Croswell thought that especially gentlemen, whose membership of the Astor House Committee might cause their sentiments to be misrepresented, should boldly disavow, in writing, having part or lot with such ruffianism, and should "wash their skirts for ever of all who had participated in it."

THE DAY AFTER THE ROW.

Syracuse, Sept. 16, 1859.

The "banquet halls" are literally deserted this morning, and those happy fountains where bad old rye and rot-gut Bourbon fertilized the hearts and imaginations of thousands of case-hardened Democrats are well nigh dried up. Cassidy, Cagger & Co. scampered away to Albany last night with a Beelzebub halo of triumph around them, which will radiate to-day or to-morrow in the columns of the veracious Atlas and Argus. Richmond chuckled himself off with them, declaring that everything had gone "just right." In the same train some forty half drunken patriots screeched and yelled their reeling carcasses into seats, simpering, fighting, swearing, laughing or hiccupping into the initiatory gutter phase of inebriety, according to the nature and habits of the individual. Cannon meanwhile were firing—probably as a sign of rejoicing on the part of Syracusans to be well rid of such a dangerous mob of incendiaries.

Quietly stowed away in seats by themselves were Messrs. Croswell, Mather, Schell, McIntyre and others of the hards. The two former are ill-content with the result of the Convention. Schell has more reason to be satisfied in consequence of the unusual, unexpected compliment which the Tammany Hall democracy have paid him in making him a delegate at large, in addition to one already selected from the city of New York. McIntrye is also a delegate, as well as his partner, Craig, of Kings. It appears certain, however, that the agreement which it was understood would be carried out in relation to the division of the Charleston convention has not been strictly carried out. The Regency men say they could not do it. The hards themselves—that is the discontented amon them—say they have been unfairly dealt with. Hon. Daniel S. Dickinson, who is still in Syracuse, entertains a brighter view of things, and declares that he is "satisfied with the action of his friends," among whom he includes the right-minded men of both sections.

The Douglas clique in this State have resolved upon a dodge to compensate them for the loss they conceive he has suffered by their not having been able to accomplish a coup d'etat in his favor in the Convention. It is to pit him against Seward at the fall election, and to induce him to stump the State in favor of the regency nominations. This, they think, will compel the minority in the delegation to Charleston to abide by the unit rule if Douglas should be the Presidential nominee.

It is beyond a doubt, also, that the nominees for State officers are principally Douglas's supporters, and they affect to have a claim to his services on this account. Nevertheless, as the gentlemen on the Regency ticket were compelled to repudiate the nominations of the Mozart Hall men before Cagger & Co. would use their slate, it may be that, if Douglas wishes to keep well with everybody, he will not see fit to be served in this way.

Lillie's Safe.

[Correspondence Press and Tribune.]

The communication, in your paper of the third inst., from your correspondent M. respecting the Bank robbery at Knoxville, is calculated to deceive the public in several respects. He says "the safe is one of Lillie's manufacture of chilled iron, with the approved combination lock."

THE TRUTH IS

1st. It was not a Bank Safe.
2d. It was not of my manufacture.
3d. It did not have my improved lock.
4th. The Safe and Lock were made by the World's Safe Company, and are in several essential particulars, entirely different from what I make. It would be absolutely impossible to rob any of my Safes with my improved lock by the means said to have been used at Knoxville.

All of these facts I can establish to the satisfaction of any person, who may desire it, by Certificates signed by several very respectable citizens of Knoxville, of this city and of other places. Lewis Lillie, Troy, New York.

As an act of justice to Mr. Lillie and to relieve the public from any fear they may have about the security of his Safes, those who have published the original communication should cheerfully publish the above.

Novelty in Fashion.—Among the novelties recently introduced in ladies' apparel, is a new article of suspenders. They bear resemblance to those worn by gentlemen, except that they are made of delicate, white, elastic fabric, with frilled edge, about one inch wide, and are attached to the skirt by buttons in like manner. We doubt not this invention will be generally adopted, with a view to relieve the waist of the unlimited burden which such habiliments necessarily produce. Reason and experience teach us that the old and absurd method, while followed, impairs the health, impedes locomotion, and tends to ill-health.—N. Y. Express.

WATER WHEELS.
Vandewater's Recently Improved
Jonval Turbine Water Wheel.
OFFICE 81 SOUTH CLARK STREET,
CHICAGO.
I offer this Improved Turbine Water Wheel to the public with the fullest confidence and assurance of its Superiority Over All Other Wheels,
Without any exception. They are well adapted to (and have been tested in) Mills of all descriptions. They give a very steady and uniform speed, and are well adapted to very high as well as very low heads and falls. They will work well in back water without any material loss of power, and are not troubled with ice, as they are set inside of the forebay and discharged underneath. It requires a small amount of gearing to get up a high speed; costs but little to set up, and runs upon a step that needs no oiling, and will last for years. This wheel is capable of yielding a power of from 70 to 85 per cent. of the whole power of the water (according to the degree of finish of wheel) under high heads and falls, and in all cases it is warranted to work up to the power laid down in the table, and to give satisfaction when properly put up and geared.
State, County and Town territories for sale.

MORE TO BE ADMIRED
THAN THE
RICHEST DIADEM
EVER
Worn by Kings or Emperors.
What? Why a Beautiful Head of Hair.
Because it is the ornament God Himself provided for all our race. Reader, although the rose may bloom ever so brightly in the glowing cheek, the eye be ever so sparkling, the teeth be those of pearls, if the head is bereft of its covering, or the hair be snarled and shriveled, harsh and dry, or worse still, if sprinkled with gray, nature will lose more than half her charms. Prof. Wood's Hair Restorative, if used two or three times a week, will restore and permanently secure to all such an ornament. Read the following and judge. The writer of the first is the celebrated Pianist, Thalberg:

New York, April 19, 1858.
Dr. Wood:—Dear Sir: Permit me to express to you the obligations I am under for the entire restoration of my hair to its original color; about the time of my arrival in the United States it was rapidly becoming gray, but upon the application of your "Hair Restorative" it soon recovered its original hue. I consider your Restorative as a very wonderful invention, quite efficacious as well as agreeable.
I am, dear sir, yours truly.   S. THALBERG.

"Drych a'r Gwyliedydd."
Welsh Newspaper office, 13 Nassau-st., April 12, 1858.
Prof. O. J. Wood:—Dear Sir: Some month or six weeks ago I received a bottle of your Hair Restorative and gave it my wife, who concluded to try it on her hair, little thinking at the time that it would restore the gray hair to its original color, but to her as well as my surprise, after a few weeks' trial it has performed that wonderful effect by turning all the gray hairs to a dark brown, at the same time beautifying and thickening the hair. I strongly recommend the above Restorative to all persons in want of such a change of their hair.   CHARLES CARDEW.

New York, July 25, 1857.
Prof. O. J. Wood:—With confidence do I recommend your Hair Restorative, as being the most efficacious article I ever saw. Since using your Hair Restorative my hair and whiskers which were almost white have gradually grown dark; and I now feel confident that a few more applications will restore them to their natural color. It also has relieved me of all dandruff and unpleasant itching, so common among persons who perspire freely.   J. G. KILBY.

TO THE BE-DRUGGED AND

You are overrun with a deluge of the vilest compounds in the form of
"ALCOHOLIC DRINKS"
That ever emanated from that pest of society, the Liquor Mixer.
They are sold to you as a luxury, or they are dispensed to you as a medicine, and in either case the effect is the same.
There is but one way to escape, and that is to use as a luxury or a medicine, a safe and reliable stimulant, sold under stamp and seal, which renders it certain that it has not been tampered with. Such an article is
Charles' London Cordial Gin,
Which is distilled under supervision of the British Government, is delicately flavored (unlike any other Gin) with some of the most valuable restoratives of the
VEGETABLE KINGDOM,
And is by far the most healthy beverage extant.
The most eminent physicians of Europe and America, not only recommend its use by the hale and hearty, but prescribe it as a medicine where a stimulant is required.
The female sex will find it not only a pleasant
CORDIAL,
But a certain relief in sufferings of a periodical character.
Analytical chemists of all ranks pronounce it perfectly pure, and its restorative merits incomparable.

LOTS FOR SALE AT LAKE FOREST, ILLINOIS.

The lots belonging to LIND UNIVERSITY, and now offered for sale present favorable inducements to persons wishing to enjoy the pleasures of country life within an hours ride of the City of Chicago.

They are located at Lake Forest, on the west bank of Lake Michigan, elevated one hundred feet above the level of the Lake, about twenty-six miles north from Chicago, on both sides of the Chicago and Milwaukee Railroads, abound in mineral and other springs and natural beauties, and in the opinion of our best physicians the advantages for a healthful resort and residence are not to be exceeded by any on the sea shore or in the Western country.

A fine Academy building (the preparatory department of Lind University) has been erected the past season, and is now in successful operation in charge of S. F. Miller, A. M.

A new Passenger Depot, a Store and more than a dozen dwellings have been erected within the past year.

In addition to the regular through trains an accommodation train taking passengers on commutation tickets at half the regular fare, leaves Chicago every evening, and returns every morning, thus affording business men an opportunity to spend the day in the city and be with their families at night.

EUROPEAN GOSSIP.

Within a few days, says the Journal du Havre, some respectable persons in Paris have become the victims of mysterious sports. Sometimes letters are distributed announcing the marriage of a certain young lady with an actor; then again letters inviting almost the whole of Paris to attend the funeral of an important personage. Lately, the Duchess de C—— saw that twenty-five carriages, full of guests, came uninvited to her chateau. Luckily, Mme. de C—— is rich and gay; and thanks to the resources of the chateau, the talent of the cook, &c., she improvised, within two hours, a splendid dinner of fifty-eight covers. Lately, one of the most eminent physicians in Paris received a note signed "Miss C——," which bade him to visit Lady C—— at her hotel, where she was said to lay dangerously ill. The Doctor, on repairing to the hotel and showing his note to the much affrighted lady, who, by the by, at that moment was alone, found out that he had been the victim of one of these jokes. The authorities have commenced to investigate the origin of these sports in order to find out the guilty ones.

London is soon to have an addition to its monstrosities in the person of a man from Douai, who has acquired in France the name of the Walking Skeleton. He has the faculty, although sufficiently embonpoint, of contracting his muscles and reducing his flesh, leaving his bones protruding, so as to give himself the appearance of a skeleton. With this he combines other surprising (but charlatan) feats. He swallows with impunity all sorts of poisons, arsenic, sulphuric acid, corrosive sublimate, and he eats live coals.

The Paris papers tell an interesting incident which brings out "an old lady of the good old time." Thus it runs: "The Commissary of Police of the district of the Rue Vivienne, Paris, was the other day called in to record the sudden death of an old lady named Freville, occupying a room on the Boulevard des Italiens, and to his surprise he learned that she was not less than 104 years of age. It is believed that her death, which took place very quietly, was hastened by the fatigue she underwent in remaining for a length of time at her window, on the 14th, to see the troops pass: but, in spite of all could be said to her, she persisted in seeing the spectacle to the end, because, she said, it reminded her of the triumphant entry into Paris of Gen. Buonaparte and the army of Italy, upward of 50 years ago."

Count Victor Wimpffen, lieutenant in the Austrian navy, son of the Austrian General of that name, has just married the daughter of Baron de Sina, the banker, receiving with the bride a fortune of 25,000,000f.

The accouchement of the Queen of Spain is expected to take place about Christmas. A letter from Madrid says that "her medical attendants experience great difficulty in inducing her to abstain from the exciting nourishment (port wine,) to which she has accustomed herself. Unfortunately, she has never been accustomed to impose any restraint upon her fancies and habits of self-indulgence, difficult to eradicate in us humble plebians, are far more so in a royal personage. There is no royal road to health. Crowned heads enjoy no immunities from the ills which common flesh is heir to. They are just as liable to ache after copious libations as ours; but the Queen's advisers experience the greatest difficulty in impressing this truth upon the royal mind."

The picture of the "Birth of Jupiter," in the late Lord Northwick's sale, has been purchased for the National Gallery. It cost his lordship £80, and was knocked down to the nation in round numbers at £1,000.

Romantic marriages are now the rage in Europe. A few months since a young person got into the train at D—n to proceed to London. She had been staying on a visit with some of her relatives residing in that village, by trade grocers. In the same compartment with herself was an elderly gentleman who entered into conversation with her, and learned that she was the daughter of a miller and shortly to be married to one in her own rank in life. The gentleman seemed much struck with her, and advised her to pause before she made so hasty a marriage. She replied that it was not hasty, as she had been engaged for some time. He, however, persuaded her not to marry till she heard from him, which she did within a week, when he wrote, offering to marry her himself, and giving her a month to consider. She took the month, and at the end of the time her noble suitor also, and shortly became the Marchioness of W——.

A French paper says: "At the Theatre du Palais Royal about a year ago was a young actress, only 17 years of age, and remarkably handsome; but in spite of her youth and beauty her success was not great. A wealthy Moldavian who had shortly before lost his wife and who had come to Paris to dissipate his sorrow, saw her, and was exceedingly struck to find that she exactly resembled the dear departed. He returned several times to the theatre, and became fascinated with her. At length he sought out her parents, requested permission to become a suitor for her hand, and was accepted, and a few days back, by lawful marriage, he gave her his name and fortune, the latter consisting of 60,000 francs a year. The Moldavian is named Steria—the young lady is daughter of M. Panier, responsible editor of the Charivari."

All accounts of the "return of the legions" to Paris spoke of a handsome young officer with both his arms tightly bound in white linen ligatures, whose appearance excited universal sympathy, and attracted the particular notice of the Emperor. It appears that on reaching the Rue Castiglione, from the Place Vendome, he fainted away. The son of the Finance Minister, who from the window of an adjoining hotel saw the officer stagger and fall, instantly sent down an arm-chair, for which the crowd made way, and the wounded man was carried up stairs and well taken care of. He is a sub-lieutenant of the 91st, who but recently left the school of St. Cyr. It is stated, in a report of the battle of Solferino, that, having his left arm broken by a Biscaien, he was sitting down at the foot of a tree in the rear of his regiment, waiting to have his wound dressed, when a shower of bullets and grape-shot proceeding from a cross-fire between the French and Austrians fell around him, broke his other arm, and struck his legs in several places. His head and body escaped by a miracle.

A Naples letter says: "The King and his bride are at Quisisana. His Majesty drives out escorted by a company of guides and forest-keepers on horseback, and armed to the teeth. A gentleman, wishing the other day to present a petition to the King, waited at a point where he was coming down the hill from Quisisana, and where the carriage was obliged to go at a slow pace. The King, on approaching, would not take the petition, but the gentleman persisted in walking by the carriage till the Queen slid her arm behind her husband's shoulders and took the paper. After delivering the paper he was arrested by the King's followers and flogged. This is the way the young sovereign, just come to his throne, treats his subjects. As for the intelligent little Queen, she is as miserable as may be, and is reported to have very little respect for her husband, on account of the absurd education given him by his father, and which unfits him as much for private as public life."

A few days since Mr. Le Blond, of Budge Row, residing at Kingston, England, was strolling in his garden in the evening, when he heard from the adjoining highway a sound of alarm. A carriage containing some ladies was brought to a stop by the falling of one of the horses. Mr. Le Blond assisted in extricating the postilion and in starting the ladies on their journey, offering them, while the carriage was being re-adjusted, the hospitalities of his house, altogether in ignorance of the quality of the ladies. The next next morning he was agreeably surprised at receiving, as a present to his wife, a handsome gold cup, accompanied with a letter expressing the gracious thanks of her Majesty the ex Queen of the French, who was one of the occupants of the carriage. The accident was not attended by any serious disaster.

A new fancy which has seized upon Parisian belles, says the Court Journal, is the crusade against bonnets, and which, it is said, the Empress is quite willing to join. Two ladies of the highest fashion are already to be seen daily driving in the Bois with no other coiffure than a lace veil of square form thrown over the hair, which is full-dressed, and ornamented with bows of ribbons.

The Paris correspondent of the N. Y. Journal of Commerce says: "On the occasion of the entry of the army of Italy, the Empress looked particularly lovely, her always beautiful countenance being radiant with happiness. Her coiffure was composed of a bonnet, which was a tasteful and becoming melange of lace, white feathers, and the most delicate white artificial flowers. The embroidered white robe bore the stamp of that bon-gout which marks all the productions of the Maison Fauvet, and over the Empress' shoulders was thrown a gorgeously wrought black lace shawl, chef d'œuvre from the looms of the unrivalled lace manufacturer, Ferguessons. There glittered on the arm of the Empress one of Baudin's unique bijoux, a souvenir of this glorious occasion; it is a garland of pansies and flowers of the double laurel strung together with pearls and diamonds, and winding several times around the wrist. On the Imperial handkerchief Chapron has exhausted all his ingenuity and inimitable good taste. It is the prettiest combination of embroidered banners and flags and armorial bearings, entwined with flowers and inlaid with medallions of costly lace. The charming flacons vinaigrette, pendant from the Empress' finger, was filled with one of those delicate scents for which the establishment of the perfumer Faguer is renowned. The baby Prince Imperial, costumed as a Grenadier of the Guard, of which his little highness is an Enfant de Troupe, sat on his mother's knees. A little time after the commencement of the ceremony of the defiling of the troops before the Emperor, who was directly opposite to the Imperial tribune, the noble little boy pleaded earnestly to go and kiss papa. Accordingly an officer led the child down to the Emperor, who caressingly placed him on the horse before him, but the noise, the clattering of horses' hoofs, the tremendous cheering, which appeared to shake the place, soon frightened the baby, and in spite of his military equipment he lustily cried out for mamma, mamma."

The quarrel between Niel and Canrobert has grown to such a height that they can hardly prevent their hatred from becoming apparent even in the presence of Imperial grandeur; and, in spite of all that has been done to hush up the affair of the duel, it is ascertained beyond a doubt now that a meeting did in reality take place in the old park of Neuilly, but had no consequences, because General Fleury appeared on the ground at the same moment as the combatants, and, in the name of the Emperor, begged them to desist from their purpose. Of course no answer but compliance could be returned to this appeal. The two Marshals returned home, where each of them found awaiting him a note in the Emperor's own hand, begging a moment's visit at the Tuileries. Both obeyed the summons. The appointment had been fixed at the same hour; and, by Canrobert, the interview is described as having been most impressive, inasmuch as the Emperor, always nervous and depressed in the morning, gave way without restraint to the weight of anxiety, the dreadful mass of disquietude, now hanging over him, and owned himself compelled to this disclosure in order to impress his listeners with a due sense of their own awful responsibility at this moment. He appealed to their sense of patriotism as a sufficient motive for the prevention of the scandal which a duel between two of the highest military authorities in the empire would occasion throughout Europe, and made them promise on their honor that no attempt of the kind should be renewed. In support of the truth of the duel, I can only say that the answer given at first by the naif old porter of Canrobert's hotel was conclusive of the fact, as to every inquiry he answered exultingly. "That Monsieur le Marechal had indeed been out at seven that morning, but had returned at nine without a single scratch!"

The Paris correspondent of the Boston Post says: "A small anecdote is causing us the greatest diversion here. The Empress, who is, like most fair sovereigns, completely burthened with the numberless applications she receives daily, is compelled to have a regular office, with secretaries and clerks at work at all times. The principal secretary, M. Damas Flinard, is an old protegé of the Empress, a man of a certain age, of great respectability, good character, and no outward pretension, at all events to the conquests which render a Frenchman's life one uninterrupted scene of summons and surrender. To this gentleman is confided every affair of importance, and her Majesty's confidence in his discretion is unbounded. The day before the departure for St. Sauveur there was, as usual, an undue pressure of business, and her Majesty, rising earlier than is her wont, proceeded to the immediate investigation of her correspondence. It was tremendous, and in her despair—en robe de chambre, and hair loosely hanging down her neck—she rushed into the Secretary's study with her hand full of letters exclaiming, "Dear Damas, see to these as soon as convenient—I am overburdened with their number." To her surprise the Secretary remained immovable, casting his eyes to the earth and answering not a word. The Empress was astonished. "What is the matter my friend—are you ill?" said she, kindly. "No, your Majesty, only taken by surprise," returned the old beau in a faint voice. "But why?" said the Empress, at a loss to understand his meaning. "Well, your Majesty—need I say more?—under the Secretaire may be found the man—and really——" The Empress listened no further. Ever since the 14th of January her head is ever filled with ideas of murder and assassination. Uttering a terrific shriek, she flew to the bell-rope—'What, a man under my Secretaire!' screamed she. 'Help, help! where are my people? is the Emperor in safety? does anybody else know of this attempt?' and so went on in this incoherent tenor till she sank, all pale and exhausted, on a chair. In a moment the room was filled with attendants, and the first cause of all the tumult, having to explain the error under which her Majesty had labored, turned into absolute shouts of laughter and merriment the terror of the previous moment. The superannuated gallantry, the musty pretensions, of the old beau have furnished the society of Paris with many a cutting pleasantry at his expense; and some people delight in believing that her Majesty was never taken in at all—that the alarm was feigned, and that she did what she really intended to do, in giving a lesson to the good-natured old swain, which will be of future service to both. This story forms the charm of every circle at this moment; and, judging by its success, se non e vero e ben trovato, at all events."

SOMETHING NEW!!!
MITCHELL'S PATENT
Metallic-Tipped Boot and Shoe.

An improvement has been applied to Boots and Shoes, by which a Great Saving in Expense is made. Every Boot and Shoe Dealer knows that Children will wear out at the toe the best constructed shoe in four to six weeks, and that it has hitherto defied the skill of manufacturers to obviate this difficulty.

THE "METALLIC TIP"

meets and overcomes it. A small piece of copper is neatly fastened to the toe of the Boot or Shoe, affording a complete protection to it, and rendering the efforts of the most inveterate stamper ineffectual to kick or wear it out.

We present this invention with the fullest knowledge of and experience in its Practical Utility. Having now for nearly two years been subjected to the severest tests, it has by its own intrinsic merits, actually surmounted every objection that could possibly be brought against it, as the accompanying certificates, which are but a fair average of hundreds of others, will abundantly corroborate. We have no hesitation in saying that the Metallic-Tipped Shoe is destined to entirely supersede, for Children and Youth, the old style; and we consider it a moderate statement, that one pair of the Metallic Tips will outwear two to three pairs of the old style, making a saving of nearly two-thirds in the expense of shoes

ARRIVAL OF THE BORUSSIA AND PERSIA.

A Crisis in the Papal States.

THE PONTIFICAL TROOPS MARCHING TOWARDS THE LEGATIONS.

SERIOUS CONFLICT IN MOROCCO.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—The steamship Borussia, from Hamburgh and Southampton, has arrived with dates to Sunday, the 4th inst.

Advices from the Zurich Conference are to the 1st inst., when at a meeting of the Plenipotentiaries, the limit of the Lombardian frontiers and the civil and ecclesiastical jurisdiction, were under consideration. A meeting of the deputy Plenipotentiaries of the three Powers was also held on the 1st.

It is reported that Austria intends to discount the portion of the Austrian debt which will be transferred to Lombardy and to sell the public domains.

The Emperor of France has intimated to the Porte that he will support the project of the Suez Canal for commercial purposes.

Rentes have advanced one fourth cent on the Paris Bourse.

Taxes have been levied on foreigners having business at Smyrna.

Advices from Gibralter state that the Emperor of Morocco was dead; also that a serious conflict had occurred on the Island of Centa, between the Spaniards and Moors. The troops had been called out. Several thousand Moors had collected, and at the last accounts the parties were in conflict all night on the 26th ult., and several were killed on both sides.

A terrible simoom passed over Calcutta on th 26th of July. Forty-six vessels, including two steamers, were lost in the river Hoogly, and immense damage was occasioned on the shore.—Many lives were also lost, but no further particulars have been received.

The Australian mail steamer North America was lost August 20th in the Red Sea. The mails and passengers were saved.

It was reported at Paris on Thursday that Metternies, the Austrian Ambassador, was about to leave on a visit to Vienna.

Business was dull at Paris on account of the Zurich conference, and the Rentes had declined.

SPAIN.—Accounts from Madrid state that Spain had withdrawn her consul from Tongiera and decided to demand satisfaction of Morocco for the outrages at Centa. Orders had been given for the formation of an expeditionary corps of 10,000 men. Later advices state that Gen. Prine will command the expedition fitting against the Moors.

ITALY.—The first National Assembly of Romagna was opened at Bologna on the 1st of September, by the Governor-General, who, in his speech, congratulated the people on the alacrity with which they had hastened to the electoral districts to record their votes. He had, he said, provided for the defense of the country against aggressions from all sides, by forming a league with the neighboring States.

The advices from Italy state that the people were becoming impatient at the inactivity of the Zurich Conference and the various contradictory reports touching their doings. A Paris letter says there is no doubt that the Zurich Conference disagree about many points touching the peace of Villafranca, and that the opinion is growing stronger every day that a congress of the great powers must be held.

GREAT BRITAIN.—The intelligence from England is not important. The strike in the building trade was approaching an adjustment.

FRANCE.—A letter from Paris says the Queen of Spain had sent to the various courts of Europe a protest against the expulsion of her Bourbon cousin from Parma.

Col. Charos and Barbes refuse to receive the benefits of the Emperor's amnesty. The former has written a letter in furious invectives against Napoleon.

The arrival of the Newfoundland mail at Paris had brought the announcement of the full triumph of the French Admiralty over the English in the question concerning the fisheries.

ARRIVAL OF THE "PERSIA."

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—The Persia, from Liverpool on the 3d, arrived here this morning. The Zurich Conference was expected to come to an abrupt close.

The Pontificial troops were threatening the legations at last accounts from Italy. Their advance into the legations appeared imminent, although the Monsteur contradicts the rumored aggression. The Roman government rejects all retorms.

The sailing of the Great Eastern had been postponed to the 29th.

THE SAN JUAN AFFAIR.

Gen. Scott's Mission to the Pacific.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—The Herald's Washington correspondent says a messenger was despatched this evening with instructions to Gen. Scott. Our government has left a wide margin for his future action, relying upon his good judgment and wise counsel in adjusting and settling the existing differences between the two governments. Gen. Scott's willingness in accepting this difficult and arduous task, has greatly relieved the administration, and they look upon a favorable and happy termination of this, at present, embarassing and troublesome question.

Mr. Campbell, Boundary Commissioner, who has been engaged for upwards of two years in arranging the boundary in dispute, had before him the full and entire views of our government upon the subject, and as the Administration supposed, had nearly arranged the whole matter, when intelligence of Gen. Harney's seizure of the Island of San Juan reached Washington. The Administration are somewhat at a loss to know what to do, inasmuch as they have not heard one word from Mr. Campbell since the difficulty arose. Ex-Senator Cooper's cheap postage and protection manifesto has produced no little sensation among the President making politicians here from different parts of the U. S.

In an iron men's league which he recommends they recognize a new power in the Middle States, which, if properly organized, is capable of holding in check the sectional disorganizing parties of the day—perhaps of dictating the nomination and election of the President in 1860. They hope, however, iron masters will not have the political sagacity to act on the suggestion.

From Washington.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 19.—The Washington correspondence of the Philadelphia North American says the dispatches received from General Harney by the last California mail in regard to the military occupation of San Juan and the complication with Gov. Douglass, were so unsatisfactory to the President, and occasioned so much apprehension as to induce him to call upon Gen. Scott to proceed immediately to the scene of difficulties and by his personal efforts and influence to arrest the drifting tendency towards a collision between the American and British forces. Gen. Scott responded with the patriotism and alacrity which have always distinguished him, and will start upon the journey on Tuesday at noon.

To Gen. Harney's impetuous character and conduct may be attributed this new entanglement which was anticipated in some form when he was ordered to the Pacific, by those who knew his rash proclivities. The Administration is not without a certain misgiving that trouble may occur befor Gen. Scott can reach his destination. Precautions have been taken by every available means to prevent such a contingency, and besides the presence of Gen. Scott, efforts will be made to anticipate his arrival by dispatches by the overland route, checking any further movements on the part of General Harney.

There is nothing in the state of the question itself which is not easily susceptible of satisfactory adjustment and which will be brought to such a conclusion by Gen. Scott, no matter what aspect it may have assumed before his appearance.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 19.—The Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Enquirer says immense numbers of Judge Black's reply to Mr. Douglas which appeared as an editorial in the government organ here, are being sent off through the Post Office, to every part of the country, but especially to Iowa, franked by Judge Black himself. Now as the law expressly prohibits any officer of the government from franking anything but what relates to the business of his office, and requires the envelopes to be endorsed official business, I should like to know where the Attorney General finds authority, by calling a reply to Mr. Douglas official business, and of sending tens of thousands off under his frank. Has he any more right to frank them than other men. The law says no. I am informed, moreover, that a considerable number of clerks in the different departments are employed in directing these replies to individuals in all parts of the country.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—General Lamar, Ex-Minister to Costa Rica and Nicaragua, who has been on business here ever since his return to Central America, left here to-day for his home in Texas.

No increase of our naval forces in the Pacific is contemplated in consequence of the San Juan island dispute. Postmaster General Holt who left the city to-day for Kentucky, proposes being absent for about two weeks.

The late storm did much damage to the corn crop of Maryland and Virginia.

Disasters at Sea.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—The schooner Stella, from Jacksonville, Flo., was boarded yesterday forenoon in the bay. She was found to have 5 feet of water in her hold, and the crew, five in number, were in a starving condition, there being only a pound of bread and half a peck of flour on board. The men were too weak to work at the pumps or raise their anchor. The boat had been lost at sea some days previous. The captain had abandoned the vessel in the morning, some hours before she was boarded, in a shore boat, and seems to have made no provision for the men. They were taken on shore and provided for.

BOSTON, Sept. 19.—The steamer Chesapeake, Capt. Crowell, from Portland for New York, encountered a hurricane at 2 o'clock Sunday morning. A very high sea was running. She put into Provincetown last evening with several feet of water in her hold. Sixty tons of cargo, consisting of sugar, syrup, oil, &c., was thrown overboard. The passengers, 17 in number, were landed in safety.

Railroad Bridge Burned.

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 19.—The bridge of the Indiana & Lafayette Railroad, over White river, near this city, was destroyed by fire on Saturday night; supposed to be the work of an incendiary.

The bridge will be rebuilt without delay. Arrangements are being made for the prompt transfer of passengers and baggage.

Destructive Fire at Attleboro, Mass.

ATTLEBORO, Mass., Sept. 19.—The building of the Attleboro Steam Power Company was mostly destroyed by fire to-day, together with several other buildings adjoining. The Steam Power Company's building was occupied by O. Wheelock, thread manufacturer, Thompson & Co., jewelers, Haywood & Driggs, jewelers, C. Suther and Wm. Blackington & Co., hoop skirt manufacturers.

A large building on the north, occupied by Mr. F. Bailey, carriage manufacturer, was also destroyed. Most of his carriages were saved.

The buildings on the south, which were also burnt, were occupied by Everett, Dean & Co., jewelers, Sturdy and Bro., jewelers, and A. Thompson, jeweler.

By this fire nearly all the manufacturing business in the place is suspended, and 300 persons are thrown out of employment. The loss is estimated at over $75,000. The amount of insurance is unknown.

The Baltimore Complication.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 19.—Mayor Swann made a reply to the communication addressed to him by the Central Committee appointed at the recent town meeting, touching the existing difficulties. The Mayor receives the communication in a friendly spirit. Promises to exert his power to insure an orderly election, and to appoint a special police force in each ward to maintain the peace. He accompanies the letter with an address to the citizens, in which he reviews the events of the past year and defends his administration from the charge of shielding or encouraging the disorderly element.

Financial and Commercial.

MONETARY

MONDAY EVENING, September 19, 1859.

Exchange has been very close during the day. Customers have been supplied sparingly by the banks at 1¼; but outsiders have been forced to pay 1¾@2 per cent premium. Some of the banks will not sell to outsiders on any terms. Ever since the rates began to sink some weeks ago, the demand has been heavy; but the judgment of our best bankers must be at fault if the rise and of course the stringency are not found to be temporary.

Gold 1¼@2 per cent. premium.

The general money market is becoming more stringent, and outside the banks there is very little doing.

We are glad to notice that the business on our railways is improving. We present the earnings of the Galena and Chicago Union Railroad Company for the week ending Sept. 15th.:

Freight..........	$20,739 19	$36,288 13	$15,548 94	increase.
Passengers......	9,999 34	21,692 88	11,693 54	do
Mails, &c......	1,250	1,125	125	decrease.
	$31,988 53	$59,106 01	$27,117 48	increase.

We presume that our other roads are also doing much better than for many months past. A part of the increase is doubtless due to the Fair; but the business on all our roads must be improving largely. It cannot fail to have a favorable effect upon their stock and upon the interests of the West generally.

The wheat market opened rather dull and heavy, and after the amount in store was posted buyers made an effort to press No. 2 Spring down to 70c; only a few car loads, however, changed hands below 71c, and at the close it was tolerably firm at that figure, showing a decline of about ½c. No. 1 Spring was steady at 73c. Winter Wheat quiet and inactive. About 67,000 bushels of all grades changed hands, at 88c for No. 1 Red; 74c for No. 2 Red; 73c for No. 1 Spring; 70 to 71c for No. 2 Spring; and 63 to 65c for Rejected Spring—all in store. There was a good demand for flour, and spring wheat brands were active and steady. Winter wheat flour is in limited request. About 1500 brls were sold at $4.75@5.50 for Winter Extras, $3.80@4 15 for Spring Extras, and $3.00 for Spring Super. Corn continues very scarce—the receipts to-day being only some 1300 bu—and under a good demand the market advanced 3c—with sales of about 9,000 bushels, at 66@68c for No. 1 in store. Oats firm, with sales of about 6,000 bushels at 26c for No. 1 in store, and 27½c afloat. Rye in good demand at 58c. Barley in active request, with sales of No. 1 at 52@53c, and 40@42c for No. 2 in store. Timothy Seed active and firm, with sales at $1.08@2.10 for inferior to prime. Highwines firm at 24½c. Hides steady.

Freights advanced 1c. Vessels were chartered to-day 6½c for wheat to Buffalo.

BOSTON—Sept. 16—Receipts, 2,933 bbls flour; 3,514 bu oats; no corn or rye.

TORONTO—Sept. 17—The wheat market was unsteady yesterday, fluctuating considerably. In the morning, about one-third of the receipts were bought at $1 to $1.08, and the best wheat did not command over $1.05. But toward ten o'clock an advance was established through competition, and the rest of the day the loads moved off freely at from $1.03 to $1.08, and in one or two instances $1.10. The receipts amounted to about 5,000 bushels, the average price for which was about $1.05, which, considering the superior quality of the wheat, made the purchases of yesterday fully 2c lower than those of the day previous. The market closed steady at full rates. Large receipts are expected to-day, as a great number of loads were coming into the city all last evening. Spring Wheat continues scarce, and is wanted at 80c. Flour is firm at the recent advance. We continue our quotations—Superfine, $4.30 to 4.40; Fancy, $4.50 to 4 60; Extra, $4.75 to $5 per bbl. Barley 60 to 65c. and in fair supply. Rye scarce, and in demand at 60c. Oats not so plentiful at 30 to 32c.

MARINE INTELLIGENCE.

MONDAY EVENING, Sept. 19.

WEATHER—Rainy, with a perfect gale from the NE.

ARRIVED FROM CHICAGO.—At Buffalo, Sept 16—Schr Oliver Culver.

At Oswego, Sept 14—Prop Michigan: schr Athenian.

CLEARED FOR CHICAGO.—From Buffalo, on the 16th—Prop Plymouth and Troy; schrs Gertrude, Fremont, A E Hart, San Jacinto and Mat. Root.

SEVERE GALE.—The day opened with a drizzling rain that has continued all day, and the stiff breeze of the morning has increased into a perfect gale from the north east. There were some vessels in the offing this afternoon, but the sea prevailing, prevented tugs going to their rescue. This is probably the commencement of the equinoxial storms, and mariners will now have to keep a sharp eye open for the weather. The breakwater of the Illinois Central Railroad was washed away this evening below the round house, and the track carried away for some distance. The wind has driven back the water into the river, until it is some two feet higher than usual, flooding the sewers and some cellars.

SATURDAY, Sept. 17.

NOTICE TO MARINERS.—Vessels entering Buffalo Harbor will give the Light House Pier 200 feet berth, and will find 14 feet water. WM. CLEAVES, Harbor Master.

THE GALE.—One of the severest gales of wind ever experienced upon Lake Ontario, has prevailed since yesterday and if it has extended to the Upper Lakes, we fear that disasters have occurred to some of the numerous vessels that have been compelled to buffet the storm.

Several vessels in the harbor, and which arrived here last night and this morning have received more or less damage, but no material loss among the shipping in this vicinity has yet been sustained.

The schooner L. Goler broke loose in the harbor and was driven on to the schooner Tempest, carrying away the bowsprit and knight-head of the latter, besides doing some other injury.

The barque Indiana was so affected by the wind and sea that she rolled the mizzen top mast out of her while lying at the Continental Elevator.

The schooner Cincinnati arrived here last night with about three feet of water in her hold, and minus part of her deck load of hoops, which she lost overboard off Sodus. She also so unshipped her fore boom, lost her fore-sail, and had her fore stanchions and about thirty feet of her rail carried away in the gale.

The schooner Lily, from Wellington Square, with lumber to Tozer & Johnson, came in this forenoon, with loss of her boat and part of her deck load.

None of the American steamers have arrived or departed since yesterday morning.—Oswego Times.
